LENNOX FALL FAIR

A large number of people from the surrounding country visited Napanee on Tuesday and Wednesday, the attraction being the annual exhibition held under the auspices of the Lennox and Addington Agricultural Society. Notwithstanding the fact that there is no bridge at the foot of the fair grounds, owing to a new one being built, and the best part of the material for the merchants' displays, together with all live stock, etc., had to be taken to the exhibition grounds by way of the swing bridge. The exhibits this year were equally as extensive and attractive as any previous year. The County of Lennox and Addington has the reputation of being the home of some of the finest horse flesh in Ontario, and the exhibit at the fair this year undoubtedly would go a long way towards sustaining that reputation. The showing of cattle and sheep was exceptionally good, while the swine exhibit was considerably in advance of last year. The poultry exhibit was not as extensive as usual, but among those shown were some very fine specimens.

The palace, as usual, was very tastily arranged with the many exhibits, which were greatly admired by the large throng of people.

FIRST DAY.

The first day of the fair is given over to the arranging of the exhibits and getting everything in ship shape, and incidentally considerable sport is derived from some horse speeding over the race course. There is usually two events scheduled for the afternoon, but this year the farmers' race did not materialize, but the event which was pulled off proved very interesting and resulted as follows:

E. Kaylor.....	1 1 1
M. McAllister.....	3 2 2
H. Sexsmith.....	2 3 3

Judges—J. Powell, C. H. Hawley, J. J. Johnston.

THE BABY SHOW.

A large crowd was present in the evening to take in the baby show and incidentally to view the exhibits. There were something like twelve or fourteen fine handsome children on exhibition, and the judges certainly had their work cut out for them in picking the winners. However the task was successfully accomplished with the following result:

Baby girls—1st Grace McCabe, 2nd Beatrice Palmer, 3rd Lena Beyette.
Baby boys—1st Clarfield Hearn, 2nd Walter McDonald, 3rd Walter R. Babcock.

Judges—Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Jas. Reid.

IN THE PALACE.

To undertake to describe the picture presented by the different exhibits on the first floor is a very difficult feat and a task we do not propose to undertake, suffice to say that this floor presented a most attractive appearance.

Mr. Jas. Walters, merchant tailor, had a nice showing of all the latest fall patterns and styles in overcoatings, suitings, pantings, etc.

Just next to the above exhibit was the display of potatoes, onions, cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, celery, watermelons, muskmelons, etc., which was very extensive and made a nice showing.

Just opposite was an exhibit of two "Melotte" Cream Separators, in charge of Mr. Wiseman, the popular machine man, whose place of business is on cause of the beautiful goods shown, but because of the tasty arrangement of them. The firm of Madill Bros. evidently believe in what is worth doing, is worth doing well. A display of this kind cannot help but be of immense value as an advertisement, and will well repay the firm for the time and trouble spent in making the exhibit.

Graham & VanAlstyne had a magnificent display of fur goods, which included all kinds of fur jackets, fur lined jackets, neck furs, muffs, caps, and men's fur coats, and in fact almost everything in the fur line. This showing was only part of a large consignment which this enterprising firm have in stock, and commencing October 15th they intend starting a fair sale at prices which will startle the community.

We must not fail to mention the extensive showing of ladies work. This beautiful exhibit occupied the whole of the eastern wing on the second floor and was the centre of attraction for the fair sex at any and all times during the time of the exhibition.

In order to get a better idea of the extensiveness of the exhibits a perusal of the prize list which follows must be resorted to.

had a nice showing of all the latest fall patterns and styles in overcoatings, suitings, pantings, etc.

Just next to the above exhibit was the display of potatoes, onions, cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, celery, watermelons, muskmelons, etc., which was very extensive and made a nice showing.

Just opposite was an exhibit of two "Melotte" Cream Separators, in charge of Mr. Wiseman, the popular machine man, whose place of business is on John street, just south of this office.

The next was the Singer Sewing Machine exhibit.

R. B. Allen's showing of pianos and organs, gramophones, phonographs, violins, mandolins, etc. is so well and favorably known that no comment from us is necessary. It goes without saying that when you purchase anything in the musical line from R. B. Allen you certainly get the best.

A very interesting exhibit was one shown by boys under sixteen years of age and consisted of the different grains in straw and a nice collection of wild flowers.

A North Pole Message.

Cold weather coming. Be sure to get all your window glass in before it reaches you. Buy nothing but Pilkington's (English) at the Medical Hall—Fred L. Hooper. It is free from flaws and uniform thickness.

COOK AND PEARY, Explorers.

There was an unusually large display of home-made bread, and certainly if it tasted as well as it looked it was exceedingly palatable. This exhibit was located in the south west wing among the dressed fowl, butter and canned goods display.

M. S. Madole had a nice showing of ranges, the leading one being the Peerless Peninsular, with its high and low closets. This range is Madole's special. In another part of the building M. S. Madole also had a nice display of hardware.

VanLaven Bros., Moscow, had a novel feature in a Newcombe playing Piano. This exhibit attracted considerable attention during the day.

F. C. Lloyd had several "Magnet" Cream Separators on exhibition. Mr. Lloyd informs us that the "Magnet" is one of the best Separators on the market to-day.

Visitors to the fair could not help noticing the J. J. Haines exhibit. The artistic and dainty arrangement of their merchandise was the cause of much favorable comment from the large crowd of sightseers. Their display was composed of everything that is to be found in a progressive and up-to-date boot and shoe store. They had a nice showing of the latest creations in boots and shoes, trunks and valises, gloves and mitts, etc.

The root and hoed crop exhibit contained some mammoth specimens.

An exhibit which made its appearance for the first time was at our fair was also located on the first floor. It was composed of aerated waters and all kinds extracts, the product the Napanee Bottling Co. The arrangement of the exhibit was very nice and attractive and Mr. J. H. Fitzpatrick, the proprietor, is to be commended for his enterprise in taking advantage of this opportunity of placing his goods before the public.

The exhibit in the centre of the building was equal to former years, and some extra fine specimens were shown.

Mr. J. W. Courtney, of the Newburgh tannery, had a nice showing of the products of his place of business, consisting of leather, rugs, robes, etc.

On the second floor F. W. Vandusen, harness manufacturer, had his usual fine display of fancy wool lap rugs, fancy wool horse blankets, fur robes, fur coats, farm and carriage harness, horse collars, etc.

Madill Bros. display came in for a good deal of inspection, not only be-

Consul H. D. VanSant, Kingston, makes the report that at Amherst Island, at the foot of the Bay of Quinte and the beginning of the Thousand Islands, two small cheese factories produced $38,000 worth of cheese last year, an increase over the previous year of $4,000. In former years, Amherst Island produced principally barley, which was exported to the United States in large quantities, but since the adoption of the United States tariff of thirty cents a bushel on barley, the farmers of the island have turned their attention to raising cattle. The result is that the production of cheese is greater in value than that of barley thirty years ago.

Council met as per adjournment. Mayor Simpson presiding.

Councillors present, Alexander, Burrows, Kimmerly, Gibbard, Bogart, Steacy, Reeve Rutan.

Reeve Rutan reported an error in his statement providing funds for the building of the new bridge, taking $6000 too much from the Street Committee, leaving them $750 of appropriation and one hundred and eighty dollars of money paid in for cement walks, and moved the adoption of his report.

On motion of Messrs. Gibbard and Alexander the minority report of the Finance Committee was filed. Mr. Rutan called for the yeas and nays.

Yeas—Alexander, Burrows, Bogart, Gibbard, Kimmerly, Steacy, Simpson, Nay—Rutan.

A motion of Councillor Gibbard, seconded by Reeve Rutan, that the collector for 1908 return his roll forthwith, make a return of all uncollected taxes, with reasons for their non-collection and take such steps as the solicitor may advise in respect of the uncollected taxes, also that the auditor be instructed to audit said roll before its return to the town treasurer. Carried.

On motion a by-law to collect taxes for the current year was read a first time.

The by-law was put through its various stages making the 1909 taxes payable on October 1st, with a discount of one per cent. to be allowed on all taxes paid before the 15th of October, and after that date at par until the 1st day of November. After the 1st day of November 5% will be added to all taxes unpaid.

On motion the by-law was finally passed, signed and sealed.

BUILDING A NEW NATION

BRITON AND BOER JOIN HANDS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

A Wonderful Spectacle—Statesmen of Britain Dared Much and Won.

The Prince of Wales has consented to visit South Africa and to open the South African Union Parliament. It is possible that his Royal Highness will be accompanied by the Princess. The Union will be proclaimed on May 31, 1910, and the Royal visit may, therefore, be expected to take place in the late summer or early autumn. The Royal itinerary may include a visit to the Victoria Falls on the Zambezi. His Royal Highness will be attended by a distinguished staff, among whom will be Sir Francis Hopwood, Permanent Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Whether the voyage will be made on board a warship or by a specially chartered liner is not settled.

AN EX-CONSUL'S VIEWS.

In a recent number of The Outlook (New York), "An Ex-Consul" contributes a striking article on "The Building of a Nation in South Africa." At the present moment the English-speaking world is particularly interested in the progress of the bill now before the British House of Commons for the federation of Cape Colony, Natal, Orange River Colony, and the Transvaal, and "Ex-Consul's" article has therefore a timely interest. In part, after a brief reference to the Boer war and the events leading to the decision for federation, he says:

AN UNPARALLELED SIGHT.

Statesmen in England spoke openly of the danger which the sullen Boers would be to British dominion. It was predicted that several generations would pass before the enmity of the Dutch would be wiped away. Yet other statesmen decided upon an apparently foolhardy policy, and these, being for the time in power, were able to carry out their plans. They deliberately gave the privilege of representative institutions to the colonies where the Boers, smarting under defeat, were in the majority; and so the world was treated to the unparalleled sight of a conquered race having full legislative powers in a country from which the army of invasion had not withdrawn. It certainly was a hazardous experiment, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it would have failed. That it not only did not fail, but was completely satisfactory, is attributable to the very fierceness of patriotism which was supposed to be the chief obstacle in the path of peace. Had the Boers been a whit less devoted to their land and a whit more devoted to their individual ambitions the experiment would have been a failure, and would probably have led to a countless number of "unpleasantnesses" here and there throughout the new colonies. But because they loved their land, and thought only of its welfare, they accepted the gift that was bestowed upon them and set themselves to work to make good the ravages of the war and to establish the country upon a lasting basis of prosperity.

DUTCH ARE NOT DISLOYAL.

have a great liking one for the other. Moreover, the Colonials have intermarried with the Boers so often that it is almost impossible to draw the line between the races. Therefore the colonial may be considered as the intermediary between the two races, and may exercise a vast power for harmony. He can smooth the way to union as no one else can smooth it, and the comprehension of this truth is gaining prevalence every day. At the close of the war the Colonial was more bitter in his treatment of the Boers than was any Englishman, but that phase of affairs soon passed, and to-day the Colonial understands that it is his duty as well as his privilege to take a prominent part in the federation of all South African interests.

GOVERNANCE OF NATIVES.

Aside from the commercial and sentimental reasons for a South African federation is one that is of more urgent importance than all the others. This is the question of the governance of the natives, who in that country are to the white people as ten is to one. For the most part, the blacks are a peaceful and harmless race in these days, but no man can tell at what minute trouble may occur. Rebellion may spring up without an instant's warning, and when that happens it is imperative that all branches of the paramount race shall stand shoulder to shoulder against a common peril. If calm and contentment are to prevail among the natives—and by means of these insurrection can be set at a far distance—there must be uniform and intelligent legislation and execution of the laws throughout all the land. The conflict of differing laws in different States sets a premium upon discontent among the natives. The native question is the most serious problem before the people of South Africa, now and at all times, and great expectations are cherished of the benefits which will accrue to native administration under a Federal Government.

THE SPIRIT OF AMITY.

It would be impossible to find a better illustration of the spirit of amity which is abroad in South Africa than was afforded by the recent conference of delegates, met at Durban, Natal, to discuss the prospects of federation and to produce the scheme which has now been accepted by the Parliaments of the Transvaal, Orange River Colony, Cape of Good Hope, and Natal. The Conference met in the Town Hall, and was under the presidency of Sir Henry de Villiers, a man of Dutch and Huguenot extraction. The delegates included General Louis Botha, who is the Dutch leader; General Smuts, General De Wet (the elusive De Wet), General De la Rey, ex-President Steyn—all these and others fought and led in the Boer army. With these veterans were such men as Dr. Jameson (of Raid notoriety, formerly the bitterest foe of the Boers), Sir George Farrar, Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, and many others who were prominent in the British ranks. The leading men of all the colonies were there and British and Dutch were on terms of absolutely unconstrained friendship. The extremely British residents of Durban thronged the hall at the opening ceremony, and watched with deep interest the arrival of the men whom the war had made famous.

"BOTHAS! GENERAL BOTHAS!"

DEMAND THEIR RIGHTS

WOMEN OF EGYPT THROW OFF OLD YOKE.

No More Meliahs and Veils, Nor Forced Marriages for Them.

A few days ago conservative Egypt was startled when Princess Hafza, a cousin of the Khedive, a charming young lady of twenty summers, appeared on the streets dressed in the latest Parisian fashion, wearing a hat from which the French milliner had discarded the veil. This audacity stirred the upper Mohammedan section of the community and telegrams were sent in large numbers to the Khedive by the religious teachers in the Azhar University and from other sources, urging him to save the dignity of their religion by forbidding his relative to espouse European fashion, thus defying the tenets of their faith and setting aside ancient laws which govern Mohammedan society.

The Khedive, it is known, didn't even take the trouble to acknowledge the receipts of these messages and therefore the Princess, unabashed, takes her daily drive dressed like any European lady and in the latest style at that.

LIKE CHRISTIAN WOMEN.

Since this Princess first defied traditional rules governing the life of Moslem women, it has become a common sight to see the rising feminine generation of Mohammedan elite society women going about like their Christian sisters, without meliahs and without veils. Mohammedan society women have organized themselves to demand that they be no longer subjected to the habit of being compelled to envelope themselves and appear while going about as though they were in the shrouds of the dead. Other demands are that they have the say as to whom they should marry, and not to be forced into wedlock with men whom they have never known, and possibly they have seen in their lives.

Mass meetings were held in the city and elsewhere, at which resolutions were passed and sent to the Khedive and to the National Council, which has been sitting reviewing the laws of the country and making recommendations to the Council of State as to what new laws should be enacted and old ones abrogated.

SELF INDEPENDENCE.

That these women are serious is shown by their fiery speeches, in which they pledged themselves to influence women of marriageable age to refuse to wed any man whom they did not know personally, or who would not pledge himself to help them acquire more self-independence. The movement has already borne some fruit. Of course it will be some time before it becomes popular with everybody, and not for many years to come will Egyptian women be entirely emancipated and have the same privileges that European and American women enjoy.

YOUTH BECAME CRIMINAL

HIS FRIEND COMMITTED SUICIDE AS RESULT.

Santa Claus Angel to the Poor Takes Her Life When Protege Fails to Reform.

Heartbroken because the youth whom she had tried to reform was convicted of forgery, Miss Elizabeth A. Phillips, whose distribution of gifts among the poor children of Philadelphia every Christmas earned her the title of the "Santa Claus Lady," committed suicide the other day by inhaling gas.

Miss Phillips had a passion for charity. Her innumerable acts of self-sacrifice shattered her health and mind. In a year her friends noticed her gradual decline. Five months ago she sustained the shock which is believed to have hastened her end.

At the time Andrew M. Rhule, a college graduate and member of a family well known in New York State, was convicted of forgery at Philadelphia after Miss Phillips had taken particular pains to reform him. Having served terms in New York prisons, Rhule, young and handsome, drifted to Philadelphia penniless and when his plight was discovered, Miss Phillips gave him employment at the headquarters of the Santa Claus association, organized, formed and directed solely by herself.

GAVE HIM FRESH START.

There he assisted her to distribute Christmas toys and other articles among children whose parents could not afford to make them holiday gifts. She supplied him with clothing and told him to make a fresh start in life. He professed repentance for past offences and, being an expert penman and accountant, he experienced little difficulty in securing remunerative employment. Keen was Miss Phillips' disappointment when not long afterward the police discovered that her protegee had palmed off bogus cheques upon business men with whom she dealt.

His arrest and conviction speedily followed, although Miss Phillips appeared in court and pleaded that he be treated with leniency. He was sentenced, however, to three years' imprisonment, and not long after his incarceration there he wrote a letter in which he pleaded for her forgiveness. Miss Phillips visited him and talked with him as long as the rules of the prison would permit. What the result of her errand was only she and Rhule knew, but she never returned to see him. To those who knew her well she often remarked that the man was one of the most bitter disappointments of her life.

WAS WEARY OF LIFE.

By an odd coincidence, one of the first persons to enter the room in which she ended her life was Sergeant Theodore Fenn, whose warm respect she had won while presiding over the rooms of the Santa Claus Association during Christmas week for the last five years. Only a few days ago she visited the station house and talked with Sergeant Fenn about charitable work, taking a pessimistic view of what she had accomplished and concluding by saying she was weary of life.

"I may not have much longer to live, sergeant," she remarked, "but der of unpleasantnesses were there throughout the new colonies. But because they loved their land, and thought only of its welfare, they accepted the gift that was bestowed upon them and set themselves to work to make good the ravages of the war and to establish the country upon a lasting basis of prosperity.

DUTCH ARE NOT DISLOYAL

Not long ago I brought to the notice of one of the foremost members of the Transvaal Government a statement to the effect that the Dutch people were only ostensibly loyal and that when the chance occurred the whole nation would rush to arms again and renew the struggle for independence.

"I have seen several assertions of this kind," he replied, "but do you truly think that we are mad? What can we possibly gain by further resistance? That is the question which people should ask themselves before they make such statements. England has given us a degree of independence for which we dared not hope, and I assure you that we appreciate the gift. Of course we shall always treasure the memory of the old regime, but that will not interfere with our making the best of the new. There is absolutely no foundation for believing that there is any underhand scheme for re-establishing the old republics."

That is the opinion of all the leaders of what may be called the Young Dutch party, and they are the men whose word will sway the minds of ninety per cent. of the people. It is simply an instance of rapid recognition of fact and earnest desire to do the best that may be done to save their beloved country from further distress and ruin.

VIEWS OF BRITISH RESIDENTS

The idea which the British residents of South Africa have in view in promoting a scheme of federation is far more sensible than that which occupies the minds of the Boers. A man naturally desires to be near one of its colonial possessions, and the most prosperous and advanced possible, and it is evident that South Africa is a federated country infinitely preferable to a collection of disconnected group colonies. The ordinary Englishman is no dislike for his Dutch neighbors and is quite ready to be reconciled to them. The war is over and the sides fought well, and the difficulties for one of the combatants are far more numerous than for the other. Britain always recognizes the commercial aspect of any possession, and he sees that the best conditions of the whole country will be greatly improved by the union of colonies.

INFLUENCE OF THE COLONIALS

There is a third factor in the case, and one that is often forgotten, but nevertheless is of great importance. This is the element which is called "colonial"—that is, people who were born and bred in the colonies. In South Africa these Colonial people are generally very pronounced in their loyalty to Great Britain, and at times they do not hesitate to speak in anything but glowing terms of their Dutch neighbors; but they and the Boers understand one another. They have fought side by side against the black foe, and they have fought one to face. Therefore they have a mutual respect for each other's valor, and at heart they the leading nations of the world were there and British and Dutch were on terms of absolutely unconstrained friendship. The extremely British residents of Durban thronged the hall at the opening ceremony, and watched with deep interest the arrival of the men whom the war had made famous.

"BOTH A GENERAL BOTH A"

The proceedings were brief and formal, and the delegates turned to leave the platform, when suddenly the whole crowd in the hall and in the corridors of the buildings set up a cry:

"Botha! General Botha!" I never heard a more heartfelt acclamation. This General Botha was commander-in-chief of the Boer forces in the war, and was the last to surrender—and Durban is the most British town in the country. There you have a picture which shows a reconciliation without an equal in history.

EARS ON THEIR LEGS.

That is Where an Ant's Grow and He Has Six of Them.

Strange as it may seem an ant has at least six ears. Aside from their multiplicity they are located in just about the queerest place imaginable—on the legs. They seem deaf to all sounds made by the vibration of the air, but detect the slightest possible vibrations of solid material.

This is supposed to be in their advantage, in that such things as approaching footsteps tell more of the possibility of danger than such sounds as are transmitted through the air.

So sensitive are their feet, says St. Nicholas, that they detect the impact of a small birdshot dropped on the table from a height of about six inches and about fourteen feet distant from an artificial nest placed at the other end of the table.

As curious as are their ears, their noses are even more extraordinary. As the ants spend most of their time in the dark, they must depend largely on scent for their guidance, and in consequence have quite an elaborate array of noses, each for a special purpose.

Miss Adele Fiedle believes that their antennae are composed of a number of noses strung along in a line. Still more strange is the fact that each of these noses can smell only a special thing.

The nose on the tip or first joint of the antenna it is said, is for recognizing the odor of the home; the one on the second point is to recognize relatives. The third nose is the pathfinder, and without it the poor ant cannot follow a trail and soon gets hopelessly lost. The nose on the fourth and fifth joints are for recognizing the eggs and immature ants in the nest.

No creature is more tidy than an ant, who cannot tolerate the presence of dirt on her body. These little creatures actually use a number of real toilet articles in keeping themselves clean. No less an authority than Dr. McCook says their toilet articles consist of coarse and fine toothed combs, hairbrushes, sponges and even washes and soap. Their saliva is their liquid soap, and their soft tongues are their sponges.

Their combs, like their ears are fastened to their legs. They stop for a hasty clean-up when they get dirty. But a more leisurely toilet is made when they feel in a bad mood, and they then lend a helping hand to one another in the process.

Egyptian women were entirely emancipated and have the same privileges that European and American women enjoy.

THE SENSATION OF FLYING.

A Writer Tells of Being Up in an Aerodrome.

The time approaches when many persons will know by first-hand experience how it feels to ride in a flying-machine. Meanwhile a writer who has been up in an aerodrome describes for the less fortunate what his sensations were:

There is no jerk in starting, although the machine leaps forward with a powerful swoop. Then comes—with some—a brief sense of nausea, a feeling as if the blurred ground were drooping away from beneath.

A slight thrust of the left-hand lever lifts the flier's head, the ground drops away still faster, and then as the machine climbs into the air one's eyes adjust themselves to the proper focus, and the surface of the earth below seems to be ripping past at railroad speed.

By this time you have forgotten the clack of the noisy motor, the flap and whirl of the propellers, the grinding of the chain and sprocket gear that drives them. All vibration has practically ceased, and you float along with a sense of springy ease and buoyancy such as you can gain from no other means of locomotion.

That you are flying fast you know only from the rear of the wind in your ears and the slight difficulty you have in filling your lungs with air—the same sensation one gets in racing against the wind in an automobile.

Then comes the first turn. The machine rises to it, taking its own angle sidewise, just as a motor car leans on the banked curve of a racing track. You have no sense of leaning sidewise, though, no feeling that you must tilt yourself as you do when the auto turns a corner for you sit upright, the aerodrome slanting of its own volition to the necessary angle and slanting you with it. A glass of water set on the floor of the flier could be carried around curve after curve and still not lose a drop.

IN NILE VALLEY.

About 900,000 Acres of Land May be Reclaimed.

Incorrect statements having been made regarding the reclamation of land in the valley of the Nile, U. S. Consul General Idings, of Cairo, states that when the addition of the Assouan dam is finished in 1912 over twice as much Nile water will be held up as at present, and it is expected that 900,000 acres of land in the very north of the Delta, over 700 miles distant from the dam, will then be reclaimed, since there will then be summer water enough to irrigate this great tract. But until the dam is finished, no steps will be taken to reclaim or drain these 900,000 acres, which lie in the low regions of the lakes. When the work of reclamation is begun, the only machinery to be employed will be dredges in the canals, the rest of the labor will be manual, which is very cheap in Egypt.

"I may not have much longer to live, sergeant," she remarked, "but when I am gone I hope my friends who have so generously aided me will understand the love and appreciation I feel toward them."

When Sergeant Fenn entered the room he found a note which read: "No one knows my sufferings; I cannot explain. I feel my mind giving way each day. I am afraid I cannot stand it all any longer."

DRUGGED A BIG LIONESS.

How Her Claws Were Trimmed at London Zoo.

The officials of the London Zoological Gardens have inaugurated with success a new method of cutting the claws of the more savage members of the menagerie. Previously this operation had been conducted by sheer physical force; now the "nippers" are applied while the animal is under the influence of chloroform.

The cutting of a lion's claws under the old method was a risky and vexatious business. A party of keepers and officials would approach the beast's cage and thrust within it a pole at the end of which dangled a noose of stout rope. Three or four hours were generally wasted in making chance shots with the pole in order to slip the noose round the animal's neck. Naturally, during this long and aggravating preliminary, the beast was worked up into a state of great anger, and by the time the noose was adjusted it was desperately savage.

CHLOROFORMED HER.

The heroic struggle began when the animal was captured, for sometimes as many as ten men were required to drag it to the front of the cage. Then came the risk of the infuriated animal scratching or snapping. For it was the duty of one of the keepers to slip a strap over the paw to be operated on directly it protruded under the bars of the cage.

The new method is simpler and very much quicker. A powerful lioness, the dew claw of whose left forefoot had curved over and was growing into the pad, was the first animal operated on. A strongly fashioned case, with glass sides and sliding doors at each end, was run on wheels to the door leading from the front to the rear of the cage. Into this case the animal was driven by keepers, and the door was closed down.

Through a small aperture in the side of the case chloroform was pumped until, in about a quarter of an hour, the beast fell down. By raising slightly one of the doors it was possible to tell by the limpness of the tail that the prostrate lioness was perfectly harmless. Then the paw required was pulled out and the keeper relieved the beast of her ingrown claw in a twinkling. The claws of a jaguar were afterwards cut in the same manner.

"How do you sell your music?" asked the prospective customer. "It depends on the kind you want," replied the smart clerk. "We sell piano music by the pound and organ music by the choir."

THE ROADS OF MOROCCO.

Tribes Plough Them Up Now and Sow Grain on Them.

SUI- There are two roads from Tangier to Fez, the one passing through Alcazar and the other following the seashore via Larache. The former is the more direct and except during the rainy season is usually chosen by the traveller, but the beach road to Larache possesses many attractions and you are able to spend a night at the old Portuguese settlement of Arzila, which is a model of the fortresses of two centuries ago.

Poor No one has ever yet measured accurately the exact distance which separates Tangier from Fez, and I hope the next person to make the journey will take a bicycle wheel with a cyclometer attached to settle the vexed question once and for all. Roughly I put the distance at 185 to 190 miles, and it is usual to take from six to eight days on the road, thus limiting the daily march to twenty-five miles, which is quite sufficient if you want to shoot on arriving in camp.

tege The journey can be done comfortably in six days if your animals are not too heavily loaded, and I have ridden from Fez to Larache in three days during the heat of August, but it is an experiment not to be recommended.

youth Except during the months of July, August and September the climate of Morocco is temperate and pleasant. The early spring is, however, the best season for a journey, as the tropical rains which are likely to overwhelm you in the late autumn and early winter have ceased. The rivers are serious obstacles during the rainy season, as there are no bridges and no ferries except close to the coast, and consequently if the fords are impracticable you are likely to be hung up on the banks of a river for a very considerable time. The rivers are wide and shallow, but are liable to rise and fall six to eight feet in twenty-four hours. Your baggage must be carried on mules or horses.

n of a There are no regular roads in Morocco and the tracks are often very difficult to trace and vary constantly because the tribes have the curious custom of ploughing right over them and sowing their grain thereon. Thus in the summer when the corn is ripe the old road has sometimes entirely disappeared and it is necessary to strike a new trail. As there are no roads carts are unknown in the interior. The only wheeled vehicles which ever found their way to Fez were brought there by the late Sultan Abdul Aziz, who succeeded in adding considerably to his unpopularity by the innovation.

He met with Indians covered with paint, carrying branches of trees in their hands, which they were sweeping round them as they walked. They were evacuating their country, being temporarily driven out by these pests. If by chance a traveller arrived at a clearing or an open space where there appeared to be an immunity from them, ere

KISS PRETIEST GIRLS.

A prettier Whitsun custom takes place at Newcastle, as it has done for many years. Dressed in their robes of office the mayor and sheriffs of the city embark on a number of gaily decorated steamers and barges and go in procession down the river till they reach the mouth.

The boats are then anchored, and the Town Clerk rises in the bows of the principal vessel and proceeds to read aloud a proclamation announcing the soil of the Tyne to be the property of the city of Newcastle.

This formality over, the procession goes home again, and on reaching the quay the Mayor and the two principal sheriffs select the three prettiest girls from among the spectators and give them each a kiss and a new sovereign.

MATCH-MAKING DAY.

In many parts of rural England Whit-Monday is the great match-making day of the year, the country villages, fairs, and festivals bringing large numbers of young men and maidens together. The celebrations in the Newbury district of the Kennet Valley are typical of these Whitsuntide festivities so dear to the hearts of the rural population.

All work is suspended, and arrayed in their Sunday best, the men, with their flags and banners flying, parade through the district, headed by a brass band playing lively airs. After attending a special service in the parish church, the processionists reform and march to a building where they dine and drink with truly rural enthusiasm to King and Constitution.

They next proceed to make the round of the principal houses in the neighborhood, where liquid hospitality is dispensed and sweet music

HIGH-PRICED POULTRY.

Seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars for Five Fowls.

No longer may we refer, scoffingly or appreciatively, to the "humble hen"; the designation does not fit. According to a contributor to Country Life in America, chickens bring hundreds and even thousands of dollars, and the poultry fraternity was not greatly startled by the reported sale of a breeding-pen of five white Orpington fowls by Mr. Ernest Kellerstrass to Madame Paderewski, wife of the eminent pianist, for seven thousand five hundred dollars.

That is the world's record high price for fowls. It was reported later that the same purchaser had offered five thousand dollars for another hen, the mother of the seven thousand five hundred dollar birds, and that it had been refused.

The latter report was incorrect; but Mr. Kellerstrass admits that Madame Paderewski offered him two thousand five hundred dollars for his hen—named Peggy,—but he declined to part with her, partly for sentimental reasons and partly because he did not need the money. The five white Orpingtons were shipped to Madame Paderewski at her home in Switzerland, and were insured before shipping for the selling price.

Two thousand five hundred dollar Peggy has been scored at ninety-seven and three-fourths points out of a possible one hundred, and has been called "the ten thousand dollar hen," a sum equalling the price offered for her plus the selling price of five of her progeny. She has been exhibited at a number of shows as a special feature, from two hundred and fifty dollars to three hundred dollars a week being usually received for such an exhibition. She is of the strain originated by Mr. Kellerstrass, which he named Crystal White, because of the purity of color.

Some five years ago an American sold to a German fancier nineteen rose-comb black Minorcas for three thousand four hundred dollars, one of the largest sales of pure-bred poultry in the country up to that time. One cock bird sold for one thousand dollars, and a breeding-pen of five birds for one thousand dollars—the highest price for a bird and the highest price for a breeding-pen.

Just a year or two farther back, at the Boston show, a buff Rock cockerel was sold for three hundred dollars, a price at that time said to be unprecedented.

In the late eighties it was said that good specimens of the white Rock never exceeded twenty-five dollars; yet Mr. U. R. Fishel tells of selling a cock bird for five hundred dollars and refusing one thousand dollars for a first-prize cock bird in 1906. At the same time he sold the second-prize cock for eight hundred dollars, the fourth and fifth-prize cocks for five hundred dollars, and the four hens in the second-prize breeding-pen for four hundred and fifty dollars—a total of one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars for seven birds.

Eggs for hatching purposes have advanced proportionately. The price of two dollars or three dollars a setting is now very ordinary. Many breeders charge ten dollars a setting for eggs from their best hens, some twenty dollars, and even higher prices. Mr. Kellerstrass says that he could not fill more than sixty per cent. of his orders

THE INTENSIVE GARDEN

THE FRENCH GARDENERS ARE THE MOST SKILFUL,

Lessons From Small Plots Cultivated by the French and Germans.

If we would live by gardening we must study the ways of gardening. It was a shrewd old English farmer who used to say to his sons, "Put the horse to, and let us drive around and see what other people are after."

The French market gardeners about Paris are the most skilful growers in the world—except the Chinese—and the average garden of an acre or two "tilled to the eyebrows," as they say, shows the following returns, given by business men interested in the matter:

"There are, of course, exceptions where the total income from one acre is $6,000 a year, but as a usual thing the gardens yield but $1,500 to the acre, and the average annual profit of the gardener is not over a thousand dollars."

How many ministers and college professors and teachers and small shopkeepers, artists and literary folk are there making a healthy living and putting a thousand dollars a year in the bank besides?

The common French gardener makes this by intensive gardening. True, he begins with certain advantages. For generations before him his family have been gardeners and the instinct for the best methods run in the blood. Within a ten-mile circuit of Paris are models of care and culture, some of which have been held by the same families for 200 years. These gardens are not large; the largest is said to be not more than four acres, common gardens are not more than two acres, and not the smallest profits are taken from plots of a quarter acre, tilled with the finest care.

Their very name, the marais gardens, comes from the marais or marshes of the Seine, which were drained four generations ago to get at their rich black soil. These plots are tucked away in angles of the old fortifications, or backed by the city walls, which protect them from north and east winds. Or else the garden has its own walls, eight to fifteen feet high on the north and east sides, giving a climate of its own.

Old gardens dating from Louis Philippe's time and before have hollow brick walls with heated flues to force winter fruit on trees trained against them. A border two and a half feet wide along these walls will yield more fruit of the finest quality than we commonly take from half an acre of orchard. In winter leanto or span-roof shelters of glazed sash protect the black Hamburg and chasselas grapes, or the peaches, red and perfumed, which weigh ten ounces apiece. By May these glass houses can be taken down and the trees rest and grow strong in the open air all summer.

toes. He met with Indians covered with paint, carrying branches of trees in their hands, which they were sweeping round them as they walked. They were evacuating their country, being temporarily driven out by these pests. If by chance a traveller arrived at a clearing or an open space where there appeared to be an immunity from them, ere long they would appear.

"Quite early in the morning, after meeting those Indians, I issued from my tent, and found an open space on the river's side where I could get my bath. But no sooner had I emerged from the water than I found swarms of mosquitoes assailing me, and do what I would, slaughter them by dozens, I suffered severely.

"It was on that same day, dining at a wayside house, that I took part in a scene which I cannot never forget. There were twenty-five men, going to the mines. Food was on the table. There was a ceaseless hum in the apartment, for it was literally brown with thousands of mosquitoes.

"It was sweltering hot, yet every man had made himself as impervious as he could. Each man wore his coat buttoned up, strings were fastened round his cuffs, and trousers also, if he had not on top-boots. They had gauntlets on their hands, their hats were on, and veils hanging down covered face and neck. A man would stick his fork into a piece of meat and pop in under the veil as quickly as possible. When drinking their coffee the men would hold the cup underneath the veil, first clearing out the bodies of the mosquitoes which possibly had been feeding upon the hairy miner close at hand.

"Not a word was uttered during that brief meal, for we were beaten down and cowed by the insects. The first words spoken were by a miner in pushing away his chair from the table. 'Oh, this God-forsaken country!'

SOUTH POLAR COAL.

From an industrial point of view, no doubt the most important discovery made by Lieutenant Shackleton's recent antarctic expedition was that of the existence, in south latitude 85 deg., of immense deposits of coal. Seven seams, varying in thickness from one to seven feet, were seen in the face of a great cliff. The coal measures were estimated to have a depth of at least 1,500 feet. Fire-clay was found with some of the seams, and in this were abundant impressions of small fossil roots. The "founda-plateform" of the anthracite continent, as far as observed, appeared to consist of ancient crystalline rocks, giving promise of containing minerals of the rare earths, now so widely employed for many purposes. Above the basal rocks sandstone occurs, and on the sandstones are bedded immense sheets of lava.

Many a poor man doesn't get half a chance after acquiring a better half.

A man seldom has as big a bank balance as he wants acquaintances to believe he has.

special service in the parish church, the processionists reform and march to a building where they dine and drink with truly rural enthusiasm to King and Constitution.

They next proceed to make the round of the principal houses in the neighborhood, where liquid hospitality is dispensed and sweet music discoursed, to which the youths and damsels trip the light fantastic toe on the drive or lawn, and exchange tender confidences as opportunity presents.

DANCE OF EPILEPTICS.

Of the actual religious ceremonies which still take place at Whit-sun the most ghastly is the dance of epileptics from all over Europe, which takes place on Whit-Tuesday at Echternach in Germany.

The ceremony is an annual one, inspired by a belief in the powers of the bones of St. Willibroid of Echternach, the healer.

To be cured the pilgrims must dance a distance of a mile and a quarter.

They advance in rows of five, in rank and file formation, some hand in hand, others holding their neighbor's handkerchiefs. Among them are hundreds of children, peasants, and poor and aged men and women. The whole aspect of the procession resembles a corn-field as the pilgrims execute their curious dance.

It is a frightful spectacle as these wrecks of humanity, this quivering, shaking mass of epileptics, approaches. Mingling with them are hundreds of small boys, the paid "substitutes" of those who are too infirm to join the dance. As the procession proceeds hundreds of the spectators throw themselves into the ranks and join the dancers in their weird procession to the cathedral.

BREAD AS FURNITURE.

Many Uses for the Sun Dried Bread Sheeting of the East.

In the land of the pyramids whenever coffee is brought in to a visiting guest, the sun cooked bread sheeting is always served therewith. It looks like so much chamois leather, and is of sweetish taste, being compounded solely of flour and the expressed pulp of sultana raisins. It is cleanly to handle and can be crumpled up in the hand without fracture.

The bread sheeting is a most important article of interior commerce, per camel caravans, among the Asiatic kalifats and bazaars. It has for thousands of years been their combined bread, cracked and cake all in one.

The bread sheeting is used in the countries of origin as minor articles of furniture and furnishings—just as the natives of the tropics make a bewildering variety of uses of the cocoanut palm and its products—as sun blinds, awnings, lanterns, cahiers for holding papers, and so on through a dozen uses. In their dry climate these uses are practicable, but in rainy seasons the goods if wetted collapse like paper almost.

Even in Manhattan among the Italian bakers you see the peculiar trellis work hardtack bread (made in big ringed sheets about a yard square) made to do duty as temporary shelving. It will not stand much weight, but is used for drying out light articles, as the air strikes the objects both from below and above.

advanced proportionately. The price of two dollars or three dollars a setting is now very ordinary. Many breeders charge ten dollars a setting for eggs from their best hens, some twenty dollars, and even higher prices. Mr. Kellerstrass says that he could not fill more than sixty per cent. of his orders last spring at ten dollars, twenty dollars, thirty dollars and forty-five dollars a setting.

Of course, if birds are worth and will sell at such high prices, the eggs that will in the ordinary course of feathered events produce similar birds should also bring good prices.

CHANGES IN HUMAN FORM.

Average of Lady's Shoe Has Increased From No. 4 to No. 5.

The tailors and shoe-dealers of London have accumulated some interesting statistics on the change in the figures of men and women.

According to the tailors, there are two new types of men; that is, as regards their figures. One is the man who plays a great deal of golf or indulges largely in other forms of outdoor sports; this man is growing taller and slimmer. On the other hand, the man who has given up walking and horseback riding for the motor car is becoming prosaically fat; during the last two years he has been forced to add an extra half inch to the waists of trousers. For the athletic type of man the average chest measurement is thirty-eight inches, with waist of thirty-four, while the motoring man, though shorter, demands a thirty-six inch waist.

As for the ladies, it is a delicate subject, but the dealers feel the truth must prevail, and they reluctantly admit that their customers' feet are much larger than they used to be. Two years ago the average was No. 4, and N. 2 was kept in stock; this latter size has now been given up and No. 3 has appeared, while the average has increased to No. 5. If this has been accomplished in two years, who can guess the changes to come?

YOUR TWO CHARACTERS.

All Greatness of Art Consists in These.

Remember always you have two characters in which all greatness of art consists—first the earnest and intense seizing of natural facts, then the ordering of those facts by strength of human intellect so as to make them for all who look upon them to the utmost serviceable, remarkable and beautiful. And thus great art is nothing else than the type of strong and noble life, for, as the ignoble person in his dealings with all that occurs in the world about him first sees nothing clearly, looks nothing fairly in the face and then allows himself to be swept away by the trampling torrent and unescapable force of the things that he would not foresee and could not understand, so that noble person, looking the facts of the world full in the face and fathoming them with deep faculty, then deals with them in unalarmed intelligence and unhurried strength and will, no unconscious or insignificant agent in consummating their good and restraining their evil. — Ruskin.

may these glass houses can be taken down and the trees rest and grow strong in the open air all summer.

The skilled French or Belgian gardener takes four to seven crops in a season from the same dead rich soil.

THERE IS NO MAGIC IN IT.

The maraicher, or marsh gardener, turns over the old mushroom beds of the season before, forks them up roughly so that the air works among the clods freely to carry off the acid gases of decomposition—"to sweeten the soil," as he says. In a few days it grows powdery and is beaten and raked to a level and three to nine inches of fine soil, not too fine, are sifted over it to make the seed bed.

Then radish seed, turnips or carrots of the small, tender, quick growing sorts are thinly sown and pressed gently into the earth. On this same bed twenty-five lettuce plants with leaves the size of a half dollar are set out, very likely with four or five cauliflowers under the same glass. In the rich warm soil, with plenty of water, the plants have nothing to do but to grow as fast as possible and get out of each other's way in succession.

The radishes are fit to pull in three weeks, the turnips and carrots in five to six weeks, the lettuce being headed and cut a fortnight before. Then the cauliflowers have room to spread, with a melon vine or a cucumber in the middle to riot over the whole three by four feet enclosed, when the cauliflower heads are set out again in the open field.

VALUABLE INVENTION.

Will Prevent Warships From Sinking or Capsizing.

Some curious experiments were recently made on a lake near Clermont-Ferrand, France, by an inventor who claims to have found a method of preventing warships from sinking or capsizing, no matter how much they have been damaged.

The experiments were attended by representatives of the Admiralty and the War Office and by a large and interested crowd of guests. The inventor, M. Chartrain, is a pianist in a music hall at Clermont-Ferrand.

His first experiment was with a model submarine six feet in length, complete with water ballast, etc. It was first put on the water and floated. The water ballast was then put in, and the submarine sank; but just before it sank a hole was purposely made in the side. It remained under water for some time, then came to the surface and floated. It floated, however, upside down.

His second experiment was more satisfactory. A beautiful little model of a warship was launched, and the guests were asked to cannonade it with revolvers. Although the hull of the little ship was riddled with bullet holes, the ship floated perfectly. It did not even sink any deeper in the water or appear to be in any danger of capsizing.

The inventor refused to say anything about his secret until a contract had been signed with the French Government. He declares he is ready to submit to any reasonable test—no matter how severe—of his invention.

PEARY TELLS HIS STORY

Sends a Message Giving Date of Passing Various Points in the Far North.

The London Times of Wednesday morning published the following message from Commander Peary, dated Battle Harbor, via wireless, to Cape Ray, Sept. 8:

"The Roosevelt left New York July 6, 1908. She left Sydney July 17, at Cape York, Greenland, August 1, left Etah, Greenland, August 8, arrived at Cape Sheridan, Grant Land, September 1, and Wintered at Cape Sheridan. The sledge expedition left the Roosevelt February 15, 1909, and started north of Cape Columbia, March 1. It passed the British record on March 2, was delayed by open water March 2 and 3, was held up by open water from March 4 to March 11, crossed the 84th parallel March 11, and encountered an open lead March 15; crossed the 85th parallel on March 18, crossed the 86th parallel March 22, and encountered an open lead March 23; passed the Norwegian record March 23; passed the Italian record March 24, and encountered an open lead March 26; crossed the 87th parallel March 27; passed the American record March 28, and encountered a lead March 29; held up by open water March 29; crossed the 88th parallel April 2, crossed the 89th parallel April 4, and reached the North Pole April 6.

"On returning we left the Pole April 7; reached Cape Columbia April 23, arriving on board the Roosevelt April 27. The Roosevelt left Cape Sheridan July 18, passed Cape Sabine August 8, left Cape York August 26, and arrived at Indian Harbor.

"All the members of the expedition are returning in good health, except Prof. Ross G. Marvin, who unfortunately drowned at Prillo, 15 miles north of Cape Columbia, while returning from 86 degrees north latitude, in command of a supporting party."

COOK SAYS NOTHING.

A despatch from Copenhagen says: It is useless to submit the most scathing despatches reflecting on him to Dr. Cook, for he simply smiles, says they are untrue and refuses to discuss them further. He has an air of perfect confidence without a touch of braggadocio.

His only reply to Commander Peary's despatch stating that he had not gone out of sight of land was this statement:

"I have been to the North Pole. As I said on Tuesday night when I heard of Commander Peary's success, if he says he has been to the Pole I believe him.

"I am willing to place facts, figures, and worked-out observations before a joint tribunal of the scientific bodies of the world. In due course I shall be prepared to make public an announcement that will effectually dispel any doubt, if there can be such, of the fact that I have reached the Pole. But, knowing that I am right and that right must prevail, I will submit at the proper time my full story to the court of last resort—the people of the world."

PEARY GIVES INTERVIEW.

A despatch from St. John's, Nfld., via North Sydney, says: The steamer Taff, fish laden, from Battle Harbor to St. John's arrived on Sunday evening. Capt. Neilsen reports having harbored with the Roosevelt Wednesday and Thursday last. He had several interviews with Commander Peary, whom, with all the party, he reports as in good health and spirits, the only shadow over the whole enterprise being the death of Prof. Marvin. Capt. Neilsen is greatly impressed with the truth of Peary's story of the expedition.

Peary claims with assurance that he brings the indubitable proofs of the absolute truth of his claims that he has accomplished his aim of reaching the Pole. Peary strove hard to get south to give the world the news before Cook, and proclaim the latter a falsifier, but was unable to do so. He had also the ill luck to run the Roosevelt on a rock in entering Battle Harbor, where she stuck till high water. This will compel her to spend a fortnight there, and she will be taken to Assizes Harbor, repaired, refitted and painted, to remove the scars of her Polar conflict, before proceeding to New York. The crew are so weakened from hard work and cares that 24 new men have been engaged for this work. Peary forbids the answering of the messages received daily asking for news. When the Taff left the party were anticipating that ship loads of American pressmen would come north, as the messages that were being received indicated that the whole United States was ablaze with this controversy.

Fashion Hints.

HATS COVERED WITH SILK.

While some of the latest official utterances of the heads of the important houses savor of Delphic vagueness with regard to autocratic fashions for the winter, there is a decided note which is being sounded in the millinery world of Paris, says a Paris letter. It is noticeable that covered hats are gaining favor. The covering can be confined to the crown, in crushed silk or velvet. Entire large hats with high crowns are beautifully covered with moire and topped with an immense bow of wide moire ribbon. Just at the juncture of the crown and brim a narrow fold of the silk is placed. This style is most convenient, because any shade of a costume can be well matched for the hat.

Unusual, this, for the Parisienne loves her contrast. On the turbans there is a backward tendency of the bulk of the trimming. Most of the folds of material are drawn from the front and project at the back beyond the line of the hair. Velvet in black and colors figures conspicuously in autumn millinery. Coque feathers are extensively used. Metallic figures in gunmetal tone are conspicuous. There is a renewed vogue of jet, which appears in combination with crystal, silver and gold. It is also introduced in beautiful embroidery designs.

In some new models the waist line is again normal. The French woman clings to the high line for evening, and her demand for this is answered by the upper line of a high girdle. Although the polonaise draperies are featured, the long, clinging lines and the variations of the tunic will not be completely surrendered. The fulness of the sleeves appears at the elbow or below, rather than at the top of the arm. Huge unstiffened revers and large pockets are concessions to the liking for Louis XIII. styles.

Skirts of street gowns are generally devoid of trimming, a la Americaine. Designers are relying upon clever introductions of pleating to give decorative effects. On the bodices much braiding is used in raitail and fancy designs.

The emphasis in street costumes is laid on the line rather than the trimming. This deserves careful study, but when mastered it can be incorporated in many new gowns. A raised line is the last innovation. It appears in the upward tendency of tunics, in the line of trimming on the bodice and in the underarm seam that curves upward from the hip to the bust.

The bride who wishes to depart from the conventional pink or yellow wedding can now have a combination of two colors, which gives originality and a rest from the one-color scheme.

One delightful idea is worked out in soft, shining silk, with the overdress of chiffon. The pale shell-pink silk of one dress has the soft overdress of grayish sea green. The iridescence of the sea at sunset is caught in the shimmering effect produced by the two materials.

The other gown has the reversed colors. Over the green silk falls

There is possibly no disease the presence of which inspires greater fear in the public mind than does leprosy. This is perhaps in a measure due to the loathsomeness of the disease in its later stages, but it is in most cases simply fear of a name.

The disease, or diseases, spoken of as leprosy in the Bible are popularly supposed to be the same as the leprosy of to-day, and the evident fear the leper inspired in the people of old is held to justify the dread with which he is still regarded. The Biblical descriptions do not, however, fit modern leprosy; so that, whether the fear of the "leper" of olden times was or was not justified, it should not be allowed to color the view with which the leper of to-day is regarded.

Leprosy is, indeed, an infectious disease; that is to say, it is due to the presence in the tissues of a bacillus, known generally as Hansen's bacillus, after the Norwegian physician who discovered it. But whether it is contagious, under the ordinary conditions of modern life, in temperate climates, at least, is held by specialists in diseases of the skin to be very doubtful.

Of the few lepers known to the physicians in all the larger cities, some are cared for in hospitals, others live at home and visit the clinics of the doctor's office from time to time; yet an instance in which another person has acquired the disease from any of these lepers is unknown.

There are many diseases more to be dreaded than leprosy, because more rapidly fatal, more painful, or more contagious; yet none of them, except perhaps smallpox, is more feared.

The illogical terror of leprosy may be the cause of great cruelty to those afflicted. There are thousands of people who show culpable indifference to the enforcement of the laws against spitting in public places, although they know tuberculosis hinges largely upon care in this regard. Yet these same persons would fly in horror from any place that had harbored a leper.—Youth's Companion.

Asquith's Answer to Sir Gilbert Parker's Question.

A despatch from London says: Prime Minister Asquith replied in the House of Commons on Wednesday to Sir Gilbert Parker's question with regard to the ownership of land at the North Pole. The question was in two parts, the first asking if North Pole land was considered as belonging to the Dominion of Canada, and the second whether the planting of the American flag there would give the United States any right of possession over the region. The Prime Minister said:—"I do not understand that there is any land at the North Pole. The second part of the question involves too much hypothetical matter for me to be able to give any definite answer." The reply was received with laughter.

A despatch from Ottawa says: News reached Ottawa on Friday morning of an attempt to wreck the northbound C. P. R. passenger train near Maniwaki, on the Gatineau Valley line on Thursday afternoon. The engineer noticed an obstruction on the track along a high embankment. He succeeded in bringing the train to a stop just as the obstruction was reached. Investigation showed that someone had placed a rail across, covered with stones and moss, so as to make it less noticeable by the engineer. The authorities are investigating.

in soft, shining silk, with the overdress of chiffon. The pale shell-pink silk of one dress has the soft overdrapery of grayish sea green. The iridescence of the sea at sunset is caught in the shimmering effect produced by the two materials.

The other gown has the reversed colors. Over the green silk falls the pink chiffon in the same design as that of the first.

Both of the dresses are held in the same color picture by the ever-efficient touch of black. At the back of the gowns, holding the ends of the crossed folds, are large, flat bows of black tulle with long flowing ends. It is a chic relief from the sameness of most bridesmaids' gowns, and offers an opportunity for using two favorite and harmonizing colors.

The jersey dress has been met with, but it has not been carefully introduced. Its credentials have not come with it and it is misunderstood. It is hardly to be regarded as a coming fashion—it is here. Whether or not it will be found a favorite and encouraged for any length of time, its place is within the present fashion period and its time is now. It is not put forth as a dressy garment, but as a fairly low-priced and convenient one for the lover of the cuirass, or fitted princess, and for the buyer of things new. Its happiest expression is a beaded, glittering surface and a well tied sash.

For the older woman, painted and printed mousselines and the spangled and jetted nets are most frequently represented in the early importations. Importers are also showing robes of printed mousseline, in the piece, as the most novel of their wares.

A despatch from Fredericton, N. B., says: George E. Beach, C. P. R. ticket seller here, was arrested on Wednesday night, charged with the theft of $835 of the company's money. A week ago Beach reported that the money, done up in packages ready for expressing to the head office at Montreal, had disappeared from his desk during ten minutes' absence. Detectives from Montreal have been working on the case ever since. It is said that an audit of Beach's books showed a large shortage in the sale of tickets, and the detectives' theory is that the prisoner used the stolen money to cover this up. Beach has always borne a good reputation, is married, and has one child. His salary was forty dollars a month.

FARM CROPS OF CANADA

Conditions at End of August Show That a Large Crop Has Been Harvested.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A statement of the farm crops of Canada at the end of August was issued by the Census and Statistics Office on Friday. It gives the estimates of production, computed from the reports of a large staff of correspondents, and, although the totals are somewhat less than those of a month ago for wheat and barley, they still show that Canada has reaped a large harvest.

The wheat crop is put down at 168,386,000 bushels, or 21.73 bushels per acre, and barley at 56,975,000 bushels, or 30.35 bushels per acre. The yield of oats, which was not estimated last month, is given as 354,919,000 bushels, peas 8,184,000 bushels, beans, 1,311,000 bushels; buckwheat, 7,794,000 bushels; mixed grains, 19,524,000 bushels; flaxseed, 2,131,000 bushels, and hay, 10,246,000 tons. Harvesting operations were practically concluded at the end of August, except in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and although there was a scarcity of labor in the Northwest, the fine weather there made the cutting of grain practicable in good condition. The wheat estimate of the three western Provinces is 149,255,000 bushels, of oats 157,502,000 bushels, and of barley, 23,893,000 bushels.

TWO TABBIES.

Margy put Tabby on the doorstep to watch while she swept the leaves off the walk with her little broom. Margy did love Tabby so dearly! She stroked her and warmed her little toes at the fire, and talked to her as if she had been a real live pussy, instead of only a printed and stuffed one.

Somebody besides Tabby was watching Margy. It was the old lady who lived next door and had nobody but her cats to keep her company; but she was such a nice old lady and had such smiling wrinkles all round her eyes that she reminded Margy of the picture of the funny good fairy in her Cinderella book.

The leaves fell so fast and kept Margy so busy that she did not see Monk, the big St. Bernard puppy, come frolicking into the yard. As soon as he spied Tabby, he thought she would be a fine plaything; so he snapped her up in his big jaws, and was off in a twinkling.

Poor Margy! Could she help crying? She dropped her broom, and the tears made two little streams down her cheeks, and fell, patter, patter, on the dry leaves at her feet.

The nice old lady was very sorry. She put on her bonnet and cloak, and in her hands she took something that was soft and warm and furry.

She went into Margy's yard, and put the soft, warm, furry something on the step, just where Tabby had sat. Then she wiped away Margy's tears, so that she could see what was there.

And what did Margy see? The very image of her lost Tabby, only this one had real fur to be stroked, and a real tail to chase, and a real purr in her little throat, which the other Tabby never had. And the kind neighbor told Margy this should be her very own Tabby. Now is it any wonder that Margy insists that the nice old lady is really a good fairy?—Youth's Companion.

Qu'Appelle. He then drove to town in the buggy, and it is alleged forged and cashed a check for $60. He left the horse and buggy at a livery stable, said good-bye to a number of friends, and took the train east. Roper informed his friends that he was going to Montreal, and it is believed he bought a ticket for that city, but he left the train at Winnipeg, where he was arrested.

SUSPENDED OVER THE FALLS

Three Men Marooned Thirteen Hours in a Launch Above Niagara.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, N. Y., says: For thirteen hours George Felz and Harry Porter, with two companions, were marooned in a small launch on a bar out in the river, less than a mile from the cataract and about a quarter of a mile from the point where the river breaks into the turbulent upper rapids. The boat went aground about 7 o'clock on Saturday night, and it was not until 8 o'clock on Sunday morning that it was released and the party, half dead from cold and fright, taken off. The absence of a wind was all that saved the boat and its four passengers from being swept over the Falls. Just off the spot where the boat grounded the water is deep and the current very swift. There was a dense fog over the river all night, and even if the launch had lifted off the reef, the men would have been in a worse plight than before, for it would have been a hard matter to make shore with the lights obscured and a margin of only a quarter of a mile between them and the rapids. All through the night the men kept calling for help, but their voices failed to reach any ear along the shore. When John W. Broderick, a riverman, went out early on Sunday and pulled the craft off the men were in a state of collapse. Several years ago the Ella H. went aground on the same reef and pounded to pieces.

WATER UNFIT TO DRINK.

Statement at Montreal Enquiry by Three Experts.

A despatch from Montreal says: The feature of Wednesday's evidence before Commissioner Cannon in the Royal Commission investigation was the unqualified condemnation of the water supply of Montreal by three expert bacteriologists, one of them a no less known and established authority than Dr. Milton Hersey himself. The evidence of these doctors followed that of Mr. George Janin, superintendent of the civic Water Department, who affirmed that in his opinion the water of the St. Lawrence was superior to that of the Ottawa for drinking purposes, and that the new intake would improve the city's drinking supply, but that the present improvements would not obviate the absolute necessity for filtration at some future date.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: Charles Ricards, of New York City, had a narrow escape from death in the Whirlpool Rapids early on Friday night. While under the influence of liquor he drove a hackman's team toward the river bank at the foot of Park Street, when Chief Kimmons caught sight of him and jumped into the carriage. The chief wrenched the reins from the hands of the drunken New Yorker and stopped the horses just before the vehicle reached the river bank. Ricards carried in his vest pocket something over $400, and Driver Sutton had considered the sum too large an amount for a man in the grip of drink to display. When the hackman went in search of a policeman, Ricards undertook to drive the team, and dashed down Park Street at a terrific rate, lashing the horses at every bound.

THE GREAT HIGHWAY.

Traffic on the Thames About the Year 1600.

The characteristic of present-day London, writes Mr. P. H. Ditchfield in "Memorials of Old London," at which all foreigners marvel, is the amount of traffic in the streets. In Elizabethan London this characteristic existed in the chief highway, the river Thames. It answered the needs of commerce and furnished the chief means of transit.

The passenger-boats were generally described as "wherries," and were likened by Elizabethan travellers to the gondolas of Venice; for instance, by Coryatt, in his "Cruicities," who thought the playhouses of Venice very beggarly compared with those of London, but admired the gondoliers because they were "altogether as swift as our rowers about London."

The maps of the period reveal the extraordinary number of "stars" for landing passengers along both banks of the river, besides the numerous wharves for goods. John Stow, the author of the "Survey of London," published in 1598, and again in a second edition in 1602, describes the traffic on the river.

"By the Thames," he says, "all kinds of merchandise be easily conveyed to London, the principal storehouse and staple of all commodities within this realm. So that, omitting to speak of great ships and other vessels of burthen, there pertaineth to the cities of London, Westminster, and borough of Southwark, above the number as is supposed, of two thousand wherries and other small boats, whereby three thousand poor men at the least be set on work and maintained."

Many of these watermen were old sailors, who had sailed and fought under Drake.

The Armada deliverance was recalled by Drake's ship, which lay in the river below the bridge. The voyage of the 'Earl of Essex to Spain, the expeditions to Ireland and to the Low Countries, formed the staple of the gossip of these old sailors who found employment in the chief means of locomotion in Elizabethan London.

A despatch from Edmonton says: A daring theft occurred last week, the first of any seriousness recorded in the North, when from $10,000 to $15,000 worth of furs, the property of Hislop and Nagle, were taken from a warehouse at Athabaska Landing. The furs stolen consist of three packs of miscellaneous furs, and thirty-five silver fox skins in a trunk. Silver fox skins alone are worth from $300 to $400 each. The furs were brought down to the landing some days ago, and were being kept there preparatory to being shipped to Edmonton. They were in a storehouse in which an entrance was forced. It is not definitely known what night the robbery occurred, as the goods had not been examined for some days. The thieves may thus have obtained several days' start.

BANK SAFE DYNAMITED.

Daring Burglary Committed Near Three Rivers.

A despatch from Montreal says: A most daring bank robbery occurred at Yamachiche, near Three Rivers, at two o'clock on Friday morning, when the vault of the branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada was dynamited and $4,800 stolen. The manager of the branch at Yamachiche, Mr. Belmore, claims that he fired several shots to frighten them away, but they did not leave until they had cleared the vault. Three charges of dynamite were used.

MONEY FOR THE WEST.

Sir Edward Clouston Says Crops Will Bring $100,000,000.

A despatch from Montreal says: Sir Edward Clouston, who returned from the West on Sunday, states that there will be $100,000,000 of money go into the West as the result of this year's crop, and expressed the opinion that the wheat crop will reach 105,000,000 bushels. He also stated that there was no probability of tightness in the money market this year.

in the river below the bridge. The voyage of the 'Earl' of Essex to Spain, the expeditions to Ireland and to the Low Countries, formed the staple of the gossip of these old sailors who found employment in the chief means of locomotion in Elizabethan London.

ANOTHER CASE OF RABIES.

Mother and Daughter Bitten by Mad Dog Near Stratford.

A despatch from Stratford says: Another case of hydrophobia has just come to light at Shakespeare, a few miles east of here. Mrs. John Russell, Huron Road, and her daughter, Mrs. Charles Stock, have been sent to the Pasteur Institute, New York, having been bitten or scratched by their own dog. The dog was mad but they did not know it.

THANKSGIVING DAY NAMED.

October 25 Selected as Date by the Government.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Government have issued a proclamation appointing Oct. 25th as Thanksgiving Day.

ASPECTS TO ORDER.

In a certain manufacturing town it is a common thing for skilled workmen to save sufficient money wherewith to build houses for themselves. A great deal of money exists among these men as to who should have the house, with sometimes curious architectural results.

A and B were two rivals. A having built a house, B, whose turn soon afterwards came, determined to outdo him. So he called in a well-known architect to prepare plans.

Asked what aspect he would like to his house, B, scratching his head, inquired:

"Aspect? What's that? Has A got one?"

"Why, of course," said the architect; "he couldn't possibly."

"Then put me on two!" was the prompt and emphatic reply.

E. H. HARRIMAN IS DEAD

The Great Railroad Man Has Succumbed to Lengthy Illness.

A despatch from Arden, N. Y., says: Edward H. Harriman, probably the greatest organizer of railroads the world has known, met the only lasting defeat of his active life on Thursday at the hands of death. Secluded in his magnificent home on Tower Hill, surrounded by members of his family, physicians and nurses, he succumbed to an intestinal disorder on Thursday afternoon after a fight against disease which will rank for sheer grit with his remarkable struggles in the financial world.

The exact time of his death is known only in that limited circle of relatives and associates who had so effectively shielded Mr. Harriman from all outside annoyances during his last illness. The time was given to the world as 2.35 p.m., but Mrs.

Mary Simons, a sister of Mr. Harriman, said on Thursday night that the end had come at 1.30 o'clock, more than two hours previous. Whether this apparent discrepancy has any bearing on the current belief that every effort was made to lessen the influence of the financier's death on the New York stock market is problematic; but it is significant that the time of his death as officially announced was just 25 minutes after trading had ceased on the Exchange in New York.

Mr. Harriman died peacefully, and almost to the end his brilliant mind retained its integrity. After a relapse on Sunday he sank steadily, and soon after the noon hour on Thursday there came a condition which marked the approach of the end.

SWEET SCENTED PILLOWS.

How to Prepare the Stuffing and Select the Covers.

In order to make sweet scented pillows, first of all the pillow stuffing must be well dried. Lay the leaves on flowers in an airy shaded room and toss them about gently every day, that they shall not collect moisture and mold. When they are quite dry you are ready to stuff the pillow. Take enough raw cotton to fill one-half of the pillow, tear it in small pieces and lay it in a big pan and dry it out well in the oven. This makes a fluffy filling. Now mix the cotton with the dried flowers and leaves, fill up the cushion of ticking and sew it firmly. It is ready for the outer covering.

Of course, if you prefer it, you may make a pillow of hops or rose leaves or lavender alone, but it will not be so comfortable as the pillow that is partly baked cotton, and, since you want to put your head on it, why not make it comfortable? Hops must be used by themselves, and so must lavender. But one may make truly delicious blends by mixing dried lemon verbena, rose geranium, rose petals from the old-fashioned flat double pink roses; they are the sweetest sort.

Pine pillows have a refreshing woody perfume, and fern leaves dried have a delightful mysterious odor that makes one remember the belief of childhood that one could put fern seed in one's eyes and ever afterward would be able to see fairies. Clover makes sweet pillows, too, red-leafed new mown hay. The common pink clover makes the sweetest sort, though white clover may be used.

As for the covers, choose something distinctive and individual. A little pillow of rose leaves and lemon verbena, covered with rose colored linen with a little rosebud stenciled on it, is most unusual and charming.

For a hop pillow choose a linen cover of dull green and embroider your monogram in mercerized cotton exactly the same tone in one corner.

The cover for a pine pillow might well be of rough tan crash or linen with a stenciled pattern of green and brown on it, or else, with a smart monogram—block letters—embroidered in brown in one corner.

Fern leaf pillows should be covered with creamy linen, rather heavy in quality, with green fern leaves embroidered or stenciled upon it. Make the cover in the form of two squares, considerably larger than the pillow, and work long buttonholed eyelets through both, lacing them together over the pillow with a ribbon of dull green. At the corner where the ribbon ties slip two or three big green beads on loops and ends.

To cover pillows a cover of the popular Russian crash in cool gray would be appropriate, and if it is stenciled lightly with butterflies or dragon flies it will add to its daintiness, or it

PERFORMERS BY HEREDITY.

Circus Families That Have Been So for Many Generations.

Circus folk—unlike their theatrical cousins in general—save their money. Their vigorous training forbids dissipation and late hours, and their busy life keeps their minds intent on their work; the circus management, too, encourages thrift, from the high-salaried performers down to the stake-driving squads. Board, lodging, and traveling expenses are paid by the show, and salary cheques are held in trust at the commissary. There is no reason why one should not leave at the season's end with nearly a whole season's earnings.

Nearly all the best performers have come into their occupation by heredity. Ninety per cent. of them, it is said, can be included within thirty families, some of which go back to the circus days of the seventeenth century.

The Chirinis of Italy, an equestrian family, go back to 1658, when their women rode before the Royal Court. The Bonairs claim a circus lineage, unbroken, of two hundred and twenty-five years. The Clarkonians have owned a circus in Ireland for over a hundred years, and the sixth generation of the family is now doing aerial work in this country.

The clean, hearty camaraderie existing between the men and women of the circus is good to see, the more so because it is so unconsciously genuine. It would be quite impossible for one or more intruders to disturb it; it is too well grounded.

And the circus family is domestic, too, in its states. The little compartments on the "Pullmans" are quite homelike in appearance, with

Silent Lies.

There are silent lies in addition to those spoken aloud. And these are equally despicable. Living a lie, turning life into a deceptive machine, is not only demoralizing, but it is always a confession of weakness. The strong, balanced mind does not resort to subterfuge. It can afford to be transparent, open, because it is conscious of strength and does not need to hide anything. Great minds are open to the light, with no dark corners. With them nothing is hidden or veiled. Everybody is afraid of the opaque mind—the mind that acts in the dark, underground. Nobody trusts the man who is always covering his tracks. We all love a transparent mind.—Exchange.

Ants Have Combs.

No creature is more tidy than an ant, which cannot tolerate the presence of dirt on its body. These little creatures actually use a number of real toilet articles in keeping themselves clean. No less an authority than Dr. McCook says their toilet articles consist of coarse and fine-toothed combs, hairbrushes, sponges, and even washes and soap. Their saliva is their liquid soap, and their soft tongues are their sponges. Their combs, however, are the genuine article and differ from ours mainly in that they are fastened to their legs. The ants have no set time for their toilet operations, but stop and clean up whenever they get soiled.—St. Nicholas.

Poet and Princess.

Alain Chartier, the French poet, is the hero of a romantic legend. One day he sat down in a public place and, being weary and exhausted by the heat of the day, fell into a slumber. As he slept Margaret of Scotland, the wife of the dauphin, afterward known in history as Louis XI., chanced to pass with her attendants. She glanced at the unconscious man and recognized in him the poet whose verses she so loved. Then, motioning to her maids to be still, she gently stepped forward, and, stooping, imprinted a kiss on the sleeping poet's lips.

A Thoughtful Gift.

Tom went out to buy a pair of gloves for his sweetheart's birthday present and to make a purchase for his father. Of course he got things mixed, as they always do in stories, and the young lady received a pair of heavy men's socks with the following note:

"Dear Helen, Please accept these in consideration of my love for you. Oh, that I were to be the only one to see them when you wear them! If you find any difficulty in getting them on, blow in them. Yours affectionately, Tom." Success Magazine.

Solomon the Snow White.

Johann Peter Hebel, the German poet who flourished in the early part of the 19th century, had better luck than has fallen to some greater poets. He became a bishop and inspector of schools. He took pains with the children. Once he asked a class what Solomon was famous for, but none could tell. Pointing to the snow outside in the hope that the white (weiss) color might give them the clue to the word wise (weise), he said: "The snow is white. Now, what was Solomon?" Came pat the answer, "Snow white!"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ## Breaking It Gently.

She stood in the doorway, one hand on the knob.

"Papa, dear," she lisped, "do you know what I'm going to buy you thirt year for a birthday present?"

"No, darling," said papa, looking up from his papers. "What?"

"Pleathe, papa," answered the little maid, "a pwetty new china thaving mug with gold flowerth on it."

"But," said the fond parent, "papa has a nice one like that already, dear, a very handsome one."

"Oh, no, he hathnt," replied the little girl, "I've jutht dropped it!"

DEATH IN A SCRATCH.

Simple Injuries with Serious Results.

Morris Quatzam, an eleven years old Windsor boy, has just died as the result of a scratch on his wrist. Poison entered the wound, which was caused by falling off his bicycle, and despite the physicians, the boy died. Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realise the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a dirty knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full. Directly these germs are introduced through the skin, a battle royal ensues between them and certain organisms in our blood.

When the invading germs are too strong for Nature's defences, in a few hours the finger will become hot and throbbing. A little later the wound may exhibit a whitish appearance in the middle of the swelling, and we have what is known as a festering or poisoned wound.

The way to avoid such serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful yet painless germ killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and inflammation.

The flesh is thus soothed and purified, the wound made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore with new healthy tissue, in a quick, painless, and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing anti-septic, soothing, and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries—cuts, bruises, burns, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal. It is also used widely for piles, for which it may be regarded a specific. All druggists and stores sell at fifty cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price using the circus ring. The men and women of the circus are good to see, the more so because it is so unconsciously genuine. It would be quite impossible for one or more intruders to disturb it; it is too well grounded.

And the circus family is domestic, too, in its states. The little compartments on the "Pullmans" are quite homelike in appearance, with the evidences here and there, in the embroidered counterpanes, the small silk window-curtains, the brackets for toilet articles, of a home-loving woman's left hand; so, too, are the dressing-rooms, even if they are taken up and put down every day. And in every one after rehearsal hours you will find a group of women industriously sewing and embroidering—or, perhaps, schooling their children.

There's a family group of tumbler, for instance—four women, two men, and three boys. They are called the "La Polomas," but that is a stage name. Their real name is something like Hauptenheimer, but, being true circus folk, they mention it always with a blush and quick apology; and strive to keep it darkly hidden till they get back each winter to their farm in Kansas. The women are blond, German, and practical, and they do all their sewing while "out on the road."

Spurgeon and Major Pond.

Major Pond, who was responsible for introducing to the public some of the greater and lesser lights of the lecture platform, had many an experience full of eccentric humor. Sometimes his charges met him with the greatest good humor. Often those whom he approached felt compelled to beat back his persuasions almost at the point of the bayonet, for nobody was so persuasive as Major Pond.

The great preacher, Charles Spurgeon, repulsed him in an ascending scale of denial. The first reply ran:

"It will only be a waste of time for you to see me, as I am not at all in your line."

The second said: "Your good natured pertinacity is so admirable that I trust you will not waste it upon an impossible object. The whole of America in bullion would not tempt me to deliver one such lecture."

The third reply was conclusive: "I have in as plain a manner as possible declined to make your acquaintance, and I beg, with all courtesy and decision, to do the same again. I know your business, and I have no wish to enter upon it further."

What He Meant.

"Your novels will not endure," said the critic.

"I know it," said the author. "They are not literature," said the critic.

"Correct," said the author.

"Well, then, what do you mean by them?"

"Money," said the author. "Waiter, fetch me a porterhouse steak."

Settled Her Doubts.

At a certain fete in the north of England there was a captive balloon, which, on payment of a shilling, you could get in and have a view of the surrounding country.

Nervous Lady (about to enter car of balloon to attendant)—I say, my man, is there any danger of this balloon bursting?

Irish Attendant—Rist aisy, marm. Don't you see it's fastened with a cable? And should it burst we could easily pull you down.

Nervous lady steps into the car quite satisfied.—London Fun.

A Permanent Thing.

"You have stated," said the badgering lawyer to a witness, "that you were born in 1886. Now you say you were born in 1887. That's an incriminating discrepancy, though perhaps you may be able to explain it."

"Certainly I can explain it," retorted the witness. "There's no incongruity there. I was born in 1886 and just stayed born. Why, I'm born yet."—Youth's Companion.

MAKING WIRE.

The Method of Rolling and Drawing the Iron Bars.

Bars of metal four inches square are heated and passed while hot and plastic through rapidly revolving rolls, reducing them to wire rods which vary from one-quarter of an inch to an inch or more in diameter, depending upon the finished size of wire wanted.

These rods, which are formed into coils as they pass through the rolls, are dipped in acid baths to remove loose scale and provide a lubricant for drawing. Drawing consists of pulling rods while cold through holes of gradually increasing diameter drilled in steel plates. During this process the particles of metal become elongated and strained, making the wire harder and more brittle. To restore it to a proper temper it is necessary to heat or anneal it.

When a fine diameter is required there must be repeated annealings and drawings. This may be done until the bar, which originally was four inches square and four feet long, becomes reduced to a diameter of a single thousandth of an inch and extended 13,000 miles in length. Before so fine a size is reached the wire will cut into the steel of the die plate, so the usual die plates must be discarded and the drawing continued through holes drilled in diamonds, the diameter of these diamond dies decreasing by fractional parts of a thousandth of an inch. This wire affords a striking illustration of the material made more valuable by the application of labor.

THE SAFEST SPOT!

Deck of Vessel is, Perhaps, Most Secure in the World.

Probably the majority of people, if asked what they considered to be the safest spot for them to be in, would reply, "In bed, or in an arm-chair by the side of the fire." But they are quite mistaken. The risk of injury is much greater than if one was traveling by ship or rail. At least, that is the conclusion which the writer of an article on accident insurance, published in the World's Work, has come to.

The curious fact is mentioned that, according to statistics, 60 per cent. of accidents happen while the victims are at home or in the street, the explanation being that a man when going a journey, or entering upon a hazardous undertaking, exercises special care, thus escaping injury, but while at home, or taking exercise, vigilance is relaxed, familiarity with common dangers breeding contempt.

Probably the safest place on land or sea is the deck or cabin of a first-class ocean liner. A first-class railway carriage is also an exceptionally safe place. This is so clearly recognized that accident insurance companies can afford to double the compensation when accidents occur on railways or tramcars. Certain companies will insure commercial travelers at premiums appreciably lower than those charged by general accident insurance companies.

A man may undertake a journey round the world with a comparatively light heart. But extreme care and vigilance are needed should he venture to hang his pictures or walk down his own stairs. The perils of the streets in London and our big cities are, of course, so well known that there is no need to comment thereon. Most people imagine that they must be fairly safe in bed. Yet accidents happen even there. Not long ago a wealthy man was seriously injured by being burned by a hot-water bottle after he had retired to rest. The moral is, of course, that whether a man lie, sit, walk, drive, or engage in any occupation or sport, he is always exposed to the risk of accident and should take his precautions accordingly.

Origin of the Cherry Tree.

As a cultivated fruit the cherry is of eastern origin. The first garden cherries, as well as the name, have come from an old Greek town on the southern shores of the Black Sea. The name of the colony was Cerasos, and the inhabitants cultivated the cherry. So in Greek the cherry became cerasos, in Latin cerasus, in French cerise, in English cherry. Pliny relates that the Roman General Lucullus, conqueror of the great Mithridates, brought the cherry from Cerasos to Rome. A tree laden with fruit is said to have adorned his triumphal procession. In the course of the next 120 years the culture of the cherry had spread far and wide and reached even remote Britain.—London Globe.

The Second Fiddle.

The second fiddle is, on the whole, the most widely played of all instruments—fortunately, since it is so especially the instrument of harmony.

A great many men have an aptitude for the second fiddle, and, where they take it up at once without too much vain experimenting with more pretentious parts, they find much satisfaction in it. There is plenty of poor work done with the second fiddle, though. Men who are forced to it by marrying or other mischance are very likely to play badly.

A master of the second fiddle is not least among masters, and he has besides the promise of inheriting the earth.—Puck.

THE OLD PIRATES.

They Were Cowards, Pilferers and Traitors to One Another.

The average pirate does not deserve his romantic reputation, even for ferocity. Pirates were brutes unquestionably and, like Captain Kidd when on the coast of Malabar, would exercise a "pretty severity" in order to extort confessions from prisoners whom they suspected of hiding goods. But the universal application of the maxim that dead men tell no tales and the dispatch of all prisoners "by the plank" were not practices of theirs. It was only at the end and when the last pirates, the broken men of the Napoleonic wars, were fighting their last fight on the south coast of Cuba that desperation made them utterly merciless. And when we say fight the word must be understood with a difference. The pirates were out "on the plundering account," and they rarely made a serious fight. Indeed, the essential cowardice of mankind is nowhere more visible than among these oppressors of unarmed traders and black villagers. Men who must have known that surrender would infallibly take them straight to the gallows laid down their arms to any decently appointed force without a blow. Every man hoped that he would save his neck, whatever happened to the others. At the worst they put off the evil hour.

Two of Avery's crew who were condemned to death petitioned that if they must be hanged they might at least be sent "to suffer in India." They may have hoped for escape on the way, but even if they were unable to get off it was better to be sent to die some months hence in India than to go to Execution dock tomorrow. They clung to their miserable lives to the last moment. Stevenson's pirates—cowards, pilferers, traitors to one another—in "The Master of Ballantrae" are the real men as they were. The pirates of "Treasure Island" are boys' book pirates. They are excellent of their kind, and Stevenson produced them with pleasure, but nobody knew better than he that they were but fancies. A parent who found his boy becoming too fond of pirate stories might do worse than put the right volumes of state trials into his hands, and, if he could only obtain a copy, then also the broadside which contains "a full and true Discovery of all the Robberies, Pyracies and other notorious actions of that famous English Pyrate, Captain James Kelly, who was executed on Friday, 12th of July, 1700." The discovery purports to be a confession by the captain and shows abundant signs of being, in fact, taken down from his mouth by a copyist who heard him ill and reports him with grotesque misspellings.—David Hannay, in Blackwood's Magazine.

MODERN MARTYRS.

Those Who Entertain, but Who Suffer While Doing It.

"In a periodical the other day," says the amateur philosopher of the Providence Tribune, "I ran across a picture of what had evidently been a musical entertainment or musicale and took it to have been a musicale for choice. 'The fiddlers had gone, and so had the soloist or soloists and guests. There remained in the foreground the deserted room and a waste of empty chairs, along with the open grand piano.

"The host's head was resting on his arms on a table. The hostess had removed her shoes and was on the verge of collapse. In the background a butler was looking on commiseratingly.

"Now, there's a good deal of that sort of thing first and last the country over. It was true to life, but I never could understand it—that is, nobody has ever explained to me why people who don't enjoy entertaining or being entertained persist in making martyrs of themselves, why anybody does something for pleasure that invariably gives pain?

"A person who puts himself out and wears himself out in the line of duty is comprehensible, but why you should sacrifice yourself when you're pretending to be looking for fun is beyond me.

"The woman who said that her idea of a perfect life from the social point of view would be to be asked everywhere and to go nowhere doubtless expressed the sentiments of thousands, but why go anywhere if you feel that way?"

FATAL CUPIDITY.

A Tragic Case of Treasure Hunting in Egypt.

A certain Egyptian native discovered the entrance of a tomb in the floor of his stable and at once proceeded to worm his way down the tunnel. This was the end of the man. His wife, finding that he had not returned two hours or so later, went down the newly found tunnel after him. That was the end of her also. In turn three other members of the family went down into the darkness, and that was the end of them.

A native official was then called and lighting his way with a candle, penetrated down the winding passage. The air was so foul that he was soon obliged to retreat, but he stated that he was just able to see in the distance ahead the bodies of the unfortunate peasants, all of whom had been overtaken by what he quaintly described as "the evil lighting and bad climate." Various attempts at the rescue of the bodies having failed, we gave orders that this tomb should be regarded as their sepulcher and that its mouth should be sealed up.

According to the natives there was evidently a vast hoard of wealth stored at the bottom of this tomb, and the would-be robbers had met their death at the hands of the demon in charge of it, who had seized each man by the throat as he came down the tunnel and had strangled him.—A. E. P. Weigall in Putnam's.

Another Opportunity.

A Certain Man, having read somewhere that Opportunity knocks only once at each one's Door, concluded to sit up all Night for fear he would Miss the Call. So while he was Sitting near his Door there came a heavy Knock thereon.

When he opened the Door a Stranger seized him and Beat him all up and Took his Money and Garments and Chided him for being so Easy.

"But," said the Man, thinking to excuse himself, "I thought it was Opportunity who knocked."

"So it was," responded the Other, "but it was My Opportunity."

An Attentive Daughter.

"I don't see why you are not as considerate of my comfort as you used to be of your father's," remarked a husband to his wife, who had shown signs of neglect. "When I come into the house I have to hunt for my slippers and everything else I happen to want, but when I used to court you, and your father would come in from the city, you would gather up his things, wheel his easy chair to the fire, warm his slippers and get him a head rest and a foot rest, so that all he had to do was to be comfortable."

"Oh, that was only to make him go to sleep sooner!" was the young wife's satisfactory explanation.—London Mail.

NAVY PIGEONS GO.

British Authorities Will Disperse Feathered Auxiliary.

After being established about ten years, the British naval authorities decided to disperse the birds in the naval lofts at Portsmouth, Sheerness and Plymouth. Some remarkable and interesting records were made by these birds, when bringing messages from ships of the navy to their lofts, but it is assumed that the Marconi system of telegraphy has now been brought to such a state of perfection that aerial messengers for purposes of warfare will no longer be required.

During the Franco-German War, when Paris was invested by the enemy, it was only by means of pigeons that for a long period the citizens of Paris obtained any information from the outside world, says Tit-Bits. Balloons were despatched from Paris carrying bundles of letters and homing pigeons belonging to a few individuals, residents of Paris. After a time a successful post was organized from Tours, outside the German lines. This pigeon post was recognized by the English authorities, and letters at a cost of half a franc a word were sent from Tours into Paris with as great a degree of rapidity as the pigeons could be sent out by balloon and conveyed from the places where they descended into Tours.

The only other instance in which pigeons have been of value in connection with war purposes was in the Anglo-Boer War of 1899. During the period that General White was surrounded in Ladysmith all means of communication were cut, but a few pigeons, belonging to English fanciers, that had been taken into Ladysmith before the siege proved of inestimable value in conveying messages to Durban, where their lofts were situated. Not only were messages conveyed, but plans of the fortifications that had been built up as well, and even though the Marconi system of telegraphy may be of service for purposes of communication, there will always be a possibility of utilizing pigeons for the purpose of sending plans and sketches over the heads of an enemy besieging a town. It is surprising with what completeness fanciers in South Africa have built up a pigeon service by establishing lofts in practically every one of the mining districts since the war. At Johannesburg there is a flourishing society, likewise at Kimberley and most other towns.

In Doubt.

A prominent church worker of Baltimore was delivering one Sabbath a talk to a class comprising pupils who lived in a rather squalid section of the town, says Harper's Weekly.

The good man touched upon the quality of untruthfulness, and at one point in his address he said:

"I want every little boy who has never told a lie to raise his hand."

Not a hand went up. But a lad in the rear rose to ask a question.

"What is it, my boy?"

"Well, sir, what I want to ask is it a lie if nobody ever knows?"

W. S. BOND, Esq.

Lloydtown, Ont., March 19th, 1909.
"For some years I have been greatly troubled with headaches and indigestion, brought on by stomach disorders, constipation and biliousness. I had tried many remedies with only indifferent success, until "Fruit-a-tives" came to my notice. Being a general storekeeper, I was selling a good many "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers and, remarking how pleased they were with the results obtained from using "Fruit-a-tives," I decided to try them and, I might say, the effects were almost magical. Headaches and biliousness disappeared and to-day I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers as 'An ideal remedy.'

"I might also add that about three years ago I was laid up with LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA—couldn't get out of bed or lift one foot over the other. A good treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of these pains and banished the Sciatica and Lumbago so that to-day I am as well as ever and can lift anything necessary."

BATH-ROOM MOTTOES.

Epigrams Designed to Cheer Up the Ablution Department.

It is very odd that while mottoes have been made, invented and borrowed for every other room in the house, the bathroom should be mottoless. Verses appropriate to the bedroom come prettily framed, the dining-room walls sometimes show a mural decoration of good cheer, an appropriate verse is carved into the library mantel, while smoking-room, den and living-room each boasts a special incentive to smoke, loaf, or indulge in cheery chatter in painted, pyrographed, or stencilled verse or prose. Only the bathroom remains mottoless.

No invitation to turn on as hot a bath as one wishes adorns its walls. No cheerful assurance that "in this house water is a luxury, not a necessity, so use it at will." Not even the commonplace that cleanliness is next to godliness serves as an inducement for the children to become amphibious offenders than they are driven.

Surely, with so vast a field for invention or imitation, there should be no dearth of mottoes for the bathroom. For example, take Bacon's "Cleanliness of body was ever esteemed to proceed from a due reverence to God."

And here's one from sixteenth century's John Heywood:

The loss of wealth is loss of dirt.

As sages at all times assert.

The happy man's without a shirt.

Or Pope's scornful poet, "A load of dust alone remains of three."

"Ay! there's the rub" might be carved into the towel rack, while let into, or over the tub, Byron's "Once upon the waters, yet once more."

Or Milton's—Listen where thou art sitting

Under the glossy, cool, translucent wave

would be most appropriate.

These are only a few crude suggestions with which to enliven the walls of the most important room in the house. Anyone with time and ingenuity, with a quotation book or a ready pen, may make the bathroom walls so interesting to the sometime bather that even the boy of the family may hear, without sullen acknowledgment, the old, familiar "Be sure and take a bath, Bobbie, before you go to bed."

A Queen Made a Color Famous.

Marie Antoinette early in the summer of 1775 appeared before the king, her husband, in a lustrous dress of chestnut brown, and he remarked, laughing, "That puce color is delightfully becoming to you." Very soon all the court ladies had puce colored gowns, but the color not being universally becoming and less extravagant than light brilliant tints the fashion of puce colored toilets was adopted by the upper middle class more than by the nobility, and dyers could hardly fill their orders. The varying shades were given the most peculiar names, none of them attractive, "flea's back," "Paris mud" and "indiscreet tears" being the most euphonious.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW TO RAISE BY WAY OF LOAN THE SUM OF $18,000.

And Whereas it is desirable to make the principal of said debt and interest repayable by yearly sums during the period of twenty years being the currency of the said debenture, said yearly sums being of such respective amounts that the aggregate amount payable in each and every year for principal and interest shall be as nearly as possible equal to the amount so payable in each of the other nineteen years of said period as shown in Schedule "A" hereto annexed.

And Whereas the total amount required by "The Municipal Act" to be raised annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest as hereinafter provided is $1383.66

And Whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Corporation of the County of Lennox and Addington, irrespective of any future increase in the same, according to the last Revised and equalized Assessment Rolls of the County is $8,457,026

And Whereas the amount of the existing debenture debt of said County of Lennox and Addington is $48,390.00 whereof no part of principal or interest is in arrear.

And Whereas the said Corporation has not raised by By-Law or By-Laws for contracting debts or loans any sum of money over and above the sum required for the County's ordinary expenditure since the 6th day of June, A. D., 1908.

Therefore the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the County of Lennox and Addington, enacts as follows:

1. That for the purpose of raising the sum of $18,000 as aforesaid, a debenture of the said County of Lennox and Addington amounting to the sum of $18,000 shall be issued on the day of 19 which said debenture shall be dated on the date of the issue thereof and shall be payable within twenty years thereafter, namely in the sums of $1383.66 in each and every year and shall be payable on the day of 19 in each of the years from 1910 to 1929, inclusive, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Corporation at the Town of Napanee in the County of Lennox and Addington.

2. The said debenture shall bear interest at the rate of  $\frac{1}{2}$  per centum per annum, payable yearly on the day of 19 in each and every year during the currency thereof and shall have attached thereto coupons for the payment of then said interest and installment of principal and the said debenture and coupons shall be signed by the Warden and countersigned by the Treasurer and Clerk of the said Corporation and the Clerk shall attach thereto the corporate seal of the said County.

3. That during the currency of the said debenture there shall be raised annually by special rate on all the ratable property of the County of Lennox and Addington, the sum of $1383.66 for the purpose of paying the amount due in each of the said years for principal and interest in respect of said debenture as shown in Schedule "A" hereto annexed.

4. That the said debenture shall be issued and negotiated by and under the supervision of the Finance Committee of the Council of the Corporation of the County of Lennox and Addington and the said Council does hereby authorize and deputate on its behalf the said Committee to issue and negotiate the sale of the said debenture under the provisions of the By-Law.

5. That the funds derived from the negotiation and sale of the said debenture shall be deposited in an agency of a chartered Bank at Napanee, to the credit of the said corporation.

6. That this By-Law shall come into force and take effect upon, from and after the final passing hereof and shall remain in full force and effect until the debenture is

PRACTICAL JOKERS GET HIGH
AND LOW ALIKE.

Humorous-Minded Individual Once
Played a Joke on the Kaiser and a Deputation—An Impudent Libel
on Princess Louise—Archduke Salvator Victim of a Cruel Hoax—
How Prince Ferdinand Was Fooled.

The "Zeppelin telegram" is not the first hoax which jokers have played upon the Kaiser.

A few years ago a paragraph appeared in a Berlin daily stating that Prince Henry, who had just returned from his visit to the United States, had brought home, as a present to his brother, a number of plants of a new variety of crimson carnation. "As everyone knows," the paragraph concluded, "the red carnation is his Imperial Majesty's favorite flower."

On the day after the publication of this news the Kaiser was due at Aix-la-Chapelle. A member of the Town Council suggested that everyone in the town should wear a buttonhole of the Kaiser's favorite flower.

The suggestion was at once acted on. The frock-coated members of the deputation which waited next morning on the platform each wore proudly a buttonhole of the deepest crimson.

The poor fellows could not conceive why the Kaiser's demeanor was so freezing. He dismissed them with a few words, got into his carriage, and drove off.

At the Town Hall was another deputation, similarly decorated. Then his Majesty's wrath exploded. "What is the meaning of this insult?" he demanded. Someone explained, and then one of the Kaiser's attendants took the mayor aside. "My dear sir," he said, "surely you know that the red carnation is the emblem of the Social Democrats, and, of all flowers, the one which his Majesty chiefly detests!"

As impudent a hoax as ever was heard of was perpetrated in 1904 upon a Belgian paper. A letter, purporting to be in the handwriting and above the signature of Princess Louise of Cobourg, was received by the editor, who very foolishly published it without first assuring himself as to its genuineness.

This letter gave a long catalogue of the wrongs of Princess Louise and of her sisters, and constituted a most brutal attack upon her father, the King of the Belgians.

The letter was at once copied by a number of other papers. Naturally, it gave great pain to the Princess herself, and the only wonder is that a prosecution for libel was not the immediate result.

Five years ago a young American woman who was staying in Copenhagen made a bet with a friend that she would propose to the King of Denmark.

His late Majesty was accustomed to devote one morning a week to the reception of anyone who desired to present any kind of petition to him, and it was on one of these occasions that the American found her way to the Royal residence.

"What can I do for you, madam?" asked the King.

"Your Majesty, I desired to ask you if you would like to marry me?" was the reply.

The King merely smiled. "I am afraid I am a little too old," he said. And at the same moment he beckoned to one of the officials to conduct the lady to the door. He had put her down as a harmless lunatic.

A joke of rather a rough order was played upon the first cousin of the Emperor of Austria, the Archduke Salvator. Two or three years ago the duke, who is very fond of traveling, was in Paris. He was passing the Bourse—the Parisian equivalent of our Stock Exchange—when his companion, a lark young French count,

Recommended As An Ideal Remedy

W. S. BOND, Esq.

Lloydtown, Ont., March 19th, 1909.
"For some years I have been greatly troubled with headaches and indigestion, brought on by stomach disorders, constipation and biliousness. I had tried many remedies with only indifferent success, until "Fruit-a-tives" came to my notice. Being a general storekeeper, I was selling a good many "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers and, remarking how pleased they were with the results obtained from using "Fruit-a-tives," I decided to try them and, I might say, the effects were almost magical. Headaches and biliousness disappeared and to-day I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers as 'An ideal remedy.'

"I might also add that about three years ago I was laid up with LUMBAGO AND SCIATICA—couldn't get out of bed or lift one foot over the other. A good treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of these pains and banished the Sciatica and Lumbago so that to-day I am as well as ever and can lift anything necessary."

BATH-ROOM MOTTOES.

Epigrams Designed to Cheer Up the Ablution Department.

It is very odd that while mottoes have been made, invented and borrowed for every other room in the house, the bathroom should be mottoless. Verses appropriate to the bedroom come prettily framed, the dining-room walls sometimes show a mural decoration of good cheer, an appropriate verse is carved into the library mantel, while smoking-room, den and living-room each boasts a special incentive to smoke, loaf, or indulge in cheery chatter in painted, pyrographed, or stencilled verse or prose. Only the bathroom remains mottoless.

No invitation to turn on as hot a bath as one wishes adorns its walls. No cheerful assurance that "in this house water is a luxury, not a necessity, so use it at will." Not even the commonplace that cleanliness is next to godliness serves as an inducement for the children to become amphibious oftener than they are driven.

Surely, with so vast a field for invention or imitation, there should be no dearth of mottoes for the bathroom. For example, take Bacon's "Cleanness of body was ever esteemed to proceed from a due reverence to God."

And here's one from sixteenth century's John Heywood:—

The loss of wealth is loss of dirt,

As sages at all times assert.

The happy man's without a shirt.

Or Pope's scornful proof, "A lean of dust alone remains of three." "Ay! there's the rub" might be carved into the towel rack, while let into, or over the tub, Byron's "Once upon the waters, yet once more." Or Milton's—

Listen where thou art sitting

Under the glossy, cool, translucent wave

would be most appropriate.

These are only a few crude suggestions with which to enliven the walls of the most important room in the house. Anyone with time and ingenuity, with a quotation book or a ready pen, may make the bathroom walls so interesting to the sometime bather that even the boy of the family may hear, without sullen acknowledgment, the old, familiar "Be sure and take a bath, Bobbie, before you go to bed."

A Queen Made a Color Famous.

Marie Antoinette early in the summer of 1775 appeared before the king, her husband, in a lustrous dress of chestnut brown, and he remarked, laughing, "That puce color is delightfully becoming to you." Very soon all the court ladies had puce colored gowns, but the color not being universally becoming and less extravagant than light brilliant tints the fashion of puce colored toilets was adopted by the upper middle class more than by the nobility, and dyes could hardly fill their orders. The varying shades were given the most peculiar names, none of them attractive, "Bea's back," "Paris mud" and "indiscreet tears" being the most euphonious.

AND LOW ALIKE.

Humorous-Minded Individual Once
Played a Joke on the Kaiser and
a Deputation—An Impudent Libel
on Princess Louise—Archduke Salvator Victim of a Cruel Hoax—
How Prince Ferdinand Was Fooled.

The "Zeppelin telegram" is not the first hoax which jokers have played upon the Kaiser.

A few years ago a paragraph appeared in a Berlin daily stating that Prince Henry, who had just returned from his visit to the United States, had brought home, as a present to his brother, a number of plants of a new variety of crimson carnation. "As everyone knows," the paragraph concluded, "the red carnation is his Imperial Majesty's favorite flower."

On the day after the publication of this news the Kaiser was due at Aix-la-Chapelle. A member of the Town Council suggested that everyone in the town should wear a buttonhole of the Kaiser's favorite flower.

The suggestion was at once acted on. The frock-coated members of the deputation which waited next morning on the platform each wore proudly a buttonhole of the deepest crimson.

The poor fellows could not conceive why the Kaiser's demeanor was so freezing. He dismissed them with a few words, got into his carriage, and drove off.

At the Town Hall was another deputation, similarly decorated. Then his Majesty's wrath exploded. "What is the meaning of this insult?" he demanded. Someone explained, and then one of the Kaiser's attendants took the mayor aside. "My dear sir," he said, "surely you know that the red carnation is the emblem of the Social Democrats, and, of all flowers, the one which his Majesty chiefly detests!"

As impudent a hoax as ever was heard of was perpetrated in 1904 upon a Belgian paper. A letter, purporting to be in the handwriting and above the signature of Princess Louise of Cobourg, was received by the editor, who very foolishly published it without first assuring himself as to its genuineness.

This letter gave a long catalogue of the wrongs of Princess Louise and of her sisters, and constituted a most brutal attack upon her father, the King of the Belgians.

The letter was at once copied by a number of other papers. Naturally, it gave great pain to the Princess herself, and the only wonder is that a prosecution for libel was not the immediate result.

Five years ago a young American woman who was staying in Copenhagen made a bet with a friend that she would propose to the King of Denmark.

His late Majesty was accustomed to devote one morning a week to the reception of anyone who desired to present any kind of petition to him, and it was on one of those occasions that the American found her way to the Royal residence.

"What can I do for you, madam?" asked the King.

"Your Majesty, I desired to ask you if you would like to marry me?" was the reply.

The King merely smiled.

"I am afraid I am a little too old," he said. And at the same moment he beckoned to one of the officials to conduct the lady to the door. He had put her down as a harmless lunatic.

A joke of rather a rough order was played upon the first cousin of the Emperor of Austria, the Archduke Salvator. Two or three years ago the Duke, who is very fond of traveling, was in Paris. He was passing the Bourse—the Parisian equivalent of our Stock Exchange—when his companion, a lark young French count,

Fortunes Typical of Countries in Which They Were Made.

The greatest fortunes in the largest cities of the world are curiously typical of the countries in which their owners live, as the death of the noted shopkeeper of Paris, H. A. Chauchard, reminds those who observe the characteristics of nations and races.

This great retailer of merchandise founded his business on women's clothing and women's finery. His success began in that field, which is exactly where the richest man in Paris might be expected to find his wealth. The French metropolis certainly lived up to its reputation in building a fortune for a retail merchant which overtopped all other big estates in that gay centre of the world's fashions and the world's merrymaking.

The richest man in New York built his vast wealth on manufactures. So did the owner of the second of the great fortunes of that city's residents. The richest Londoner is supposed to be the Duke of Westminster, whose wealth represents landed possessions acquired from ancestors who obtained their real estate by royal favor generations ago. In Germany the greatest fortune belongs to the heirs of a maker of cannon and other products of iron and steel. Since Krupp is dead, the richest man in active business in the German Empire is probably a Berlin banker.

If the gossip of financial circles is to be relied upon, the greatest fortunes in Austria-Hungary and Russia are landed estates, the accretion of generations of special privileges and grants from sovereigns. Like conditions exist in Spain and Italy, though in the last country some of the manufacturers are fast rising to the level of the richest nobles, in pecuniary resources.

But Paris rated its most famous shopkeeper as its wealthiest citizen, which is in perfect accord with the fitness of things.

A joke of rather a rough order was played upon the first cousin of the Emperor of Austria, the Archduke Salvator. Two or three years ago the Duke, who is very fond of traveling, was in Paris. He was passing the Bourse—the Parisian equivalent of our Stock Exchange—when his companion, a lark young French count, suggested that he might like to look inside.

"If you walk straight in," he said, "no one will notice you. They will take you for a stock broker."

The duke took him at his word, but, of course, he was no sooner inside than he was at once recognized as a sightseer. His silk hat was instantly spirited away, and he was at once surrounded by a mob of dealers with notebooks, shooting fabulous offers to buy or sell stock.

The duke had a desperate struggle to reach the front lobby, and when at last he got there, hatless and breathless, he found that some genial soul had pinned a long price-list to the tails of his coat.

It is not likely that any reigning sovereign ever got a more unpleasant scare than did Ferdinand of Bulgaria some five years ago. His private secretary, a young baron, was away in Austria on a vacation, when a letter arrived for his Royal master, announcing that he did not propose to return, and that he would be glad of the sum of $200,000. Otherwise, he wrote, he would be compelled to sell a number of secret documents which he had taken away with him.

Instantly Prince Ferdinand despatched a couple of secret service envoys in chase of his missing secretary, whom they ran to ground peacefully shooting on his own estate. Further investigation proved the missive to be nothing but a hoax.

Russians Like Perfumery.

The Russians are very good and lucrative customers to the makers of perfumery, for it flows like water as a spray in their apartments and in the little ornamental fountains that decorate their drawing-rooms and state apartments, among the utmost luxury that prevails in rare flowers and plants, especially in St. Petersburg during the long winter season.

Learn to Laugh.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn to tell a story. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Learn to do something for others. Even if you are a bedridden invalid there is always something that you can do to make others happier, and that is the surest way to attain happiness for yourself.—Exchange.

His News.

"The only news I have to tell you," wrote the Billville citizen, "is that the river has riz an' drowned all yer cattle, an' yer uncle has broke jail; likewise the widder woman you wuz a-goin' ter marry has runned off with a book agent. Outside of these here things, we air all doin' well."—Atlanta Constitution.

He Knew No Fear.

Prince Metternich was driving to Vienna one day during the congress of 1815 when the horses bolted, the carriage was overturned and Metternich was thrown into the roadway. Finding he had no bones broken, he picked himself up and walked quietly away. The same evening he met the king of Naples, who had seen the accident.

"How horribly frightened you must have been," said the king.

"Not at all," answered Metternich.

"It is no merit of mine, but I am constitutionally inaccessible to fear."

"It is as I thought," replied the king.

"You are a supernatural being."

LETTERS FROM WOMEN About Pe-ru-na.

MRS. CLARA L. MILLER.

MRS. S. L. JEWELL.

MRS. MAHALA REID.

The following testimonials represent actual experience of every-day life. They are the truthful utterances of women who have been ill and have found a reliable remedy in Peruna.

It means a great deal to the women of America to have at hand a remedy capable of giving such relief. Constipation, rheumatism, kidney trouble, bronchitis and a host of other catarrhal conditions are relieved by Peruna. At least this is what the women say. They have no object in saying such things, except to render truthful testimony to their suffering sisters.

Peruna is making such friends every day. It is the testimony of the people that has made Peruna so justly famous

Chronic Bronchitis.

Mrs. Clara L. Miller, Box 71, Columbia Sta., Seattle, Wash., formerly vice president of Skoogay Country Club, writes: "Nine bottles of Peruna cured me of a protracted case of bronchitis. There is no superior remedy that I know of, as the action of Peruna on the vasa motor system of nerves is very beneficial. It increases the tone of the system and aids nature to perform her functions."

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends, who speak in the same high terms of it. I have certainly found it most efficacious medicine."

Nervous, Tired and Weak.

Mrs. Christina Smukalla, 490 Winslow Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I trust every one suffering from systemic catarrh will read this and profit by it."

"I was in a very bad condition indeed, when I began to take Peruna, and my friends as well as myself were very much alarmed over my condition. I was always nervous, could not sleep at night, my food did me no good, and I was always tired and weak. I tried several doctors, but found no relief."

"Finally I took two bottles of Peruna and felt like a different woman. However, I did not stop there, but kept on with it until I had taken several bottles, when I felt completely cured, and have remained so ever since. I can eat and sleep now."

A Good Word for Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. S. L. Jewell, R. F. D. 1, Freeport, Pa., writes:

"Having used Peruna myself for many years with beneficial effects, and observing the good it has done others of my acquaintance, I cannot but say a good word in behalf of Peruna."

Keeps Pe-ru-na in the House.

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140."

"Dr. Hartman's remedies have proven to be reliable and wonderful. Their effect upon the system is remarkable. Peruna quiets the nerves, and is a great specific for all forms of chronic catarrh."

"I am very glad to say that I can write you that I am cured in every way of catarrh, with which I had suffered terribly for ten years. I cannot thank you enough for your advice."

Constipation, Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Mahala Reid, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes:

"Your celebrated remedies have been a wonderful boon to me in my old age. I have not been in so good health for several years as now."

"I was troubled with constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble. A little over two years ago I completely lost my health, becoming almost helpless, when a dear friend sent me your remedies, Peruna and Manalin."

"I began to take them, following the directions on the bottles. I very soon began to feel benefited by their use, and continued to take them."

"I am now completely recovered from the above ailments, in fact, better than I have been for years past."

"I cannot praise the remedies too highly and will always recommend them to others."

A Well-Known Remedy.

Peruna is a catarrh remedy that has been in the field for many years. Other catarrh remedies have come and gone, but the reputation of Peruna has out-lived them all.

Peruna is a combination of efficient herbal remedies that wields a powerful influence on all the mucous membranes of the body, and hence reaches catarrh wherever it is located.

The Dandelion, Clover Leaves and the Scarlet Pimpernel.

The dandelion is a dandy barometer, one of the commonest and most reliable. It is when the blooms have seeded and are in the duffy, feathery condition that the weather prophet faculties come to the fore. In fine weather the ball extends to the full, but when rain approaches it shuts like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is past, says the Chicago Tribune.

The ordinary clover and all its varieties, including the trefoll and the shamrock, are also barometers. When

A centenarian named John Burke, who fought in the Crimea, died recently at Tremadoc, Eng. He was aged 105, and bore a scar on the wrist the result of a sword thrust. Up to last winter he retained all his faculties, and a walk to Portmadoc and back, a distance of two miles, in no way tired him.

The Stone Tree.

There is a tree which grows in Mexico called the "chijol," or stone tree. It is of enormous proportions both in circumference and height. It has a number of branches spreading out widely and carrying leaves of a yellowish green color. The wood is extremely fine and easily worked in a green state. It is not given to either warping or splitting. The wonderful part about it is that after being cut the wood gets gradually harder and in the course of a few years it is absolutely petrified, whether left in the open air or buried in the ground. From this timber houses can be built that would in a few years become completely fireproof and would last as though built of stone.

How the Cure Worked.

A man suffering from a stubborn attack of insomnia was advised by a well-meaning friend to try a number of leg and toe exercises after retiring. A few days afterward he was approached by his friend with inquiries as to the result of his suggestion. "Well," said the insomniac laconically, "I reckon those exercises are all right, Jim, but when I had tried them all it was time to get up."

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me. I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

the sun extends to the rain, but when rain approaches it shuts like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is past, says the Chicago Tribune.

The ordinary clover and all its varieties, including the trefoil and the shamrock, are also barometers. When rain is coming the leaves shut together like the shells of an oyster and do not open again until fine weather is assured. For a day or two before rain comes their stems swell to an appreciable extent and stiffen so that the leaves are borne more upright than usual. This stem swelling when rain is expected is a feature of many flowering grasses.

The fingers of which the leaves of the horse chestnut are made up keep flat and fanlike so long as fine weather is likely to continue. With the coming of rain, however, they droop as if to offer less resistance to the weather. The scarlet pimpernel is nicknamed the "poor man's weather glass" or wind cone and opens its flowers only to fine weather. As soon as rain is in the air it shuts up and remains closed until the shower or storm is over.

INSECT STINGS.

Dangerous Always and Especially When One Is Run Down.

Stings and bites of insects are extremely dangerous at all times and especially when the system is not in a condition to resist the poison injected.

In many insects the nature of the poison has not been ascertained, while in most of them it is of an acid, irritant nature, in others it may contain a powerful cardiac sedative and depressant, and in still others organisms in pure or mixed cultures may be introduced with the sting or bite. Apart from the natural poison used by insects it should not be forgotten that flies and other insects that live on carrion may easily carry contagion and inoculate the persons whom they bite or sting.

In the case of ordinary bites and stings the chemical antidote is an alkaline solution, such as a strong solution of bicarbonate of soda or potassium, which counteracts the acid of the sting. Suction at the wound in all these varieties of stings and bites will draw out some of the poison and until some antitoxin treatment can be found which will prove an antidote to the bacterial poison introduced little can be done beyond a stimulating and supporting treatment with attention to symptoms.—Health.

Old Mail Box.

Among the treasures held by the Antiquarian society in Portsmouth, N. H., there is an old box the history of which is given on a label which it bears. The box is of tin, painted green, and shows signs of much usage, which is not surprising when one considers that it carried the United States mail between Portsmouth and Boston during the Revolution. It is about nine inches long, four and a half inches wide and a little more than that in height. It was carried on horseback by Captain John Noble, otherwise known as Deacon Noble, who was post rider until 1783. This box contained all the mail and made every week one round trip, occupying three days in the journey—from Portsmouth to Boston at the end of the week and three days at the first of the week from Boston to Portsmouth. The distance between the two places is a little more than fifty miles.

PRAYER AND THE INFINITE

Communion With God Cannot Wait for Seasons for It Must be Continuous

"But thou when thou prayest, pray to thy Father which is in secret."—Matt. vi. 6.

No matter what a man's theories may be about prayer it is almost certain to be the case that at some time he will pray and quite likely that he will pray almost habitually. It also often happens that those who protest most vigorously as to their faith in prayer though often assuming the postures and phrases of prayer, nevertheless actually pray least truly and effectually.

To many prayer is a habit surviving superstitious practices. They themselves really fear to go to sleep without praying lest they should thus offend the Deity and thus some terrible calamity befall them. Perhaps from childhood they have been taught with foolish forms of prayer to beseech the protection of heaven against a world of demons.

So long as children are led to think of their world as peopled with powers of evil, spooks, goblins, and bogies, they readily and steadily pray to some good power to ward off such evil beings, especially during their sleeping hours. When you stop to think about it, a great wrong is being done to childhood by sending the little ones to dreamland with their last words a petition in regard to

DYING BEFORE THEY WAKE.

Half of the petitions of the world grow out of fear. Men are afraid either of the one they address or of some other superhuman power or of impending imaginary disaster. Still other prayers grow out of sloth, men ask for a blessing on the crop they are too lazy to cultivate or for the bread they will not earn, or the virtues they will not fight to win.

It is a good thing that many prayers remain unanswered. Doubtless most petitions fail to secure the specific thing requested. This would be an utterly immoral world if a few hasty or even tearful words could put some of us at so great an advantage over the rest, if prayer might give us benefits unearned and undeserved.

There are higher levels of praying. They grow out of the conception of the friendship of the vast world of the spirit, out of the feeling that life lies beyond this clay-environed life of ours, that spirit to spirit may speak. The infinite one loses awesome majesty in winning affection and, where no voice is heard nor words are framed, the heart goes out in true prayer, in communion and aspiration.

Prayer is friendship with the Infinite, the reaching out of the spirit of man after the life of the spirit beyond us, the search for a sympathy deep and broad enough to feel with all our needs, to pity and be patient and encouraging when we can hope for no such help from those who are limited by living

ON OUR PRESENT LEVEL.

Prayer is the heart's hunger for communion, the life that is in us, that life which seems to feel back before the cradle and reach out beyond the grave, seeking its own, calling for its companions, deep calling unto deep. It is aspiration. It is as natural as breathing.

Friendship would be a poor thing if it never got beyond the privilege of asking favors of the friend. Yet how many there are who talk of their affection for an infinite friend who never seek communion with the friend except to recite some tale of woe, to present some series of needs, or proffer some requests.

If you measure prayer as you measure business, by what you get out of it, there is nothing strange in its emptiness. If it is merely a superstitious act, performed to placate an imaginary almighty adversary, the sooner your life is free from such a soul paralyzing habit the better.

No man ever prays until praying rises from commercial petitioning to simple intercourse of soul. The world is a barren place, bounded by emptiness behind and darkness before, unless the deepest and best in us finds touch with the life that envelopes all our living, unless the soul within defies the limitations of science, and seeks its own atmosphere and intercourse of friendships.

HENRY F. COPE.

uncle, it was very evident that he was by no means a welcome guest. "Imagine his coming now of all times," Amy had said, in her high, fretful voice, "bringing disgrace on us all, and making Arthur think what queer relations we have! He must be kept in the background as much as possible."

And the sharp words had reached the uncle's ears; Margaret Verney had caught sight of him at that moment, and she knew the bitter speech had stung him. A great pity and sense of comradeship seized her at that moment, and the smile with which she had looked at him was perhaps the only welcome he had received.

The fire blazed up with a pleasant burst of flames, and Margaret Verney—lost in her own dreams, gazing into the heart of the fire—did not hear the door open quietly, and she started violently when a hand touched her softly on the shoulder and a voice said, with a familiar accent:—

"Moping all alone, Miss Verney! That's too bad. You ought to be dancing with the rest."

The girl got up with a little shudder of dislike as her eyes fell on the tall, good-looking young man who had stolen in upon her. She cordially disliked her employer's nephew, who had chosen on more than one occasion to pester her with his unwelcome and insolent attentions, but young Henderson was quite impervious to snubs.

"I have my work to do," she said, quietly; "and in any case I should be too tired to dance."

The young man laughed as his eyes rested with bold admiration on the girl's flushed face.

"Nonsense!" he said, coming a step nearer. "You know quite well that you're mewed up here because my fond aunt and the girls are as jealous as cats of you and your beauty. If only you'd be a bit kind to me I'd change all that for you. Won't you? Just a kiss or two—I'm not asking much."

"I have told you before, Mr. Henderson, that I will not be pestered with your insulting attentions. If you do not immediately leave the schoolroom I shall summon assistance."

The man colored darkly, and before Margaret was quite aware of his intention he had seized her in his arms.

"No! By Jove! I'll not go till I've taken what I want!" he said, with a laugh.

"You'll keep your distance, you young cur," said a quiet voice, and a strong hand flung him aside with astounding ease, while Margaret Verney drew a long breath of relief.

"He didn't hurt you?" asked Montagu, turning to her.

"No; thank you so much. I—I—"

"And you'd better clear out," said Montagu, wheeling round and facing the infuriated young man, "unless you wish to be—horsewhipped. Get out!"

"And leave the field clear for you, eh? Well, I wish Miss Verney joy of the returned prodigal—the beggar man from Canada," muttered Henderson, maliciously; but he went out of the room all the same.

"Does he annoy you often?" asked Montagu, sharply. "Because if so I will lodge a complaint with my sister."

"Well, it is not the first time Mr. Henderson has tried to annoy me," she confessed; "but—please, Mr. Montagu, don't trouble about it. He will be leaving in a few days, and then—it will be all ion's hand rather longer than was absolutely necessary.

"I may come and see you!" he asked. She colored a little.

"Yes—if you wish," she said, with a momentary hesitation. And then he went away to his solicitor's offices, where he was received with all the respect and deference due to a millionaire.

"I particularly wish you to make inquiries for me about an estate in Yorkshire at present in the market, called Hallenby Hall," he said, concisely. "It is situated near the sea coast, and is a property I wish to secure."

"Certainly, Mr. Montagu."

He was very busy for some weeks after that, but he managed to see a good deal of Margaret Verney. And all the time his plans were maturing, and the property on which Miss Verney's early youth had been spent—the home she loved so well—passed secretly and quietly into the hands of the latest millionaire. And then, when everything was quite ready, he asked Margaret Verney to be his wife.

"You don't know much about me, perhaps," he said, ruefully, "but I can promise you a happy life, sheltered and cared for. I love you dearly—I will be good to you always—if you can only care a little, when I care so much. Would you be content to marry a poor man, Margaret?"

"If I loved him I would," she said, very low.

"And can you care just a little?" he said, eagerly.

"Oh, I care so much," she whispered. The rest was silence.

They were married very quietly a few weeks after. And later in the day the newly-married couple set off on their journey to Yorkshire.

"We will visit the vicinity of your old home," Montagu said to his wife, and it was with a strangely fluttering heart that in the warm, summer evening the girl found herself alighting at the familiar little station.

A handsome motor with a couple of men in dark livery stood in the station yard, and Margaret, to her amazement, found herself being hurried into it, while her modest luggage was put into a luggage-cart, in charge of a smart groom.

"But where are we going?" she asked in amazement, as the car glided swiftly away to where Hallenby Hall reared its grey mass from out of a sheltering plantation facing the limitless sea.

"We are going home," said Montagu, tenderly. "Are you glad, my own?"

"But I don't understand," she said, faintly. "I—thought you were a poor man, and—"

"Well, my sister and her family made the same mistake," said Montagu, quietly. "You see, they took it all for granted—and so did you. I had my own reasons for not wishing to deceive them for the present, and—here we are at home, Margaret."

And that was how Margaret Montagu came back to her old home.

As Mrs. Montagu was standing looking out at the dear, well-remembered view from her own windows, her eyes filled with happy tears, Robert came in and crossing the room stood beside her for a minute in silence.

"You like it?" he said at last. She turned to him, her face flushed like a rose, perfect happiness in her eyes.

"Oh, Robert!" was all she could say.

"And you won't mind being the wife of a millionaire instead of a beggar man?" he said, fondly.

MR. MONTAGUE'S MARRIAGE

Mr. Robert Montagu walked slowly down the quiet country road. He was within a few miles of the great metropolis, but in this peaceful Hertfordshire village he felt a thousand miles from the hub of the universe. And yet he had but lately returned from a very distant country—the western part of Canada—where things had prospered exceedingly with him. He had, in short, come home with his pile—a rich man at least, and had returned to the old country for a well-earned rest, with an idea at the back of his busy mind that it might

Mrs. Henderson frowned, then cast a sharp glance at her brother.

"Of course, you can stay here," she said without enthusiasm, "if you like—not that we have much room at present. You see, Amy is just engaged, and we have her young man—he is the great-nephew of an Honorable, Sir Steven Lawson, Robert—staying here, and, of course, we've a great deal going on for him. He's a good match for our Amy and—but you can stop a bit if you don't mind a small room. What do you mean to do?"

"Oh, just look about me," said Montagu, vaguely, and a silence fell between brother and sister for a few moments.

So this was the welcome—and he had dreamt of something so different.

"Well, I don't know whether Frank might be able to do anything for you," said his sister, suddenly,

TOMATOES.

To Peel Tomatoes.—To peel tomatoes without scalding them, rub gently all over with the back of paring knife. Then the skin will peel off easily without any of the meat adhering thereto.

Cheese-Tomato Stew.—Peel six medium-sized tomatoes (canned tomatoes may be used), cut in pieces, and boil until thoroughly cooked. When tomatoes are well done, add one-half pound grated Canadian cheese, salt and pepper to taste. Let mixture cook until it is right thickness to spread on toast. After cheese is added stir constantly to prevent sticking to pan.

Stuffed Tomatoes.—Take twelve large smooth tomatoes, one teaspoonful salt, little pepper, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful of sugar, one cupful of bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of onion juice, cut a thin slice from the smooth end of each, with a small spoon scoop out as much of the pulp and juice as possible without injuring their shape. Mix pulp with the other ingredients and fill tomatoes with this mixture. Put on tops, arrange in a baking pan that has been buttered and bake slowly three-quarters of an hour. Lift with cake turner to platter, garnish with parsley, and serve hot.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Chicken Livers.—Take nice, fresh tomatoes, cut off the tops, scrape out all the inside, and fill with the following mixture. Bake on a buttered tin. Serve each tomato on a crouton of bread. Serve hot on a dish with little white of egg whipped to a stiff froth on each. Pound chicken livers with pepper, salt, and butter, then mix in the tomato pulp; mix well, and fill each tomato fully. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top.

Tomato Relish.—One peck of ripe tomatoes, one cupful of celery chopped fine, six white onions chopped fine, two red peppers chopped fine, one ounce mustard seeds, two pounds of brown sugar, one-half cupful of salt. Chop celery, tomatoes, onions, and sprinkle with salt and let stand twenty-four hours. Heat vinegar and sugar and let cool. Drain tomatoes and other ingredients and mix in mustard seeds, and pour on vinegar and can airtight.

BREAKFAST DISHES.

Rice and Plums.—Two cupfuls of milk, two ounces of rice, one heaping tablespoonful of sugar, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Put the milk into a saucepan on the fire and when it boils add the rice, well washed, sprinkling it into the boiling milk. Add sugar and vanilla. The mixture should be just thick enough to pour into a wet mould. Leave it in mold until cold, then loosen around the edge, shake gently, and turn out on a pretty dish. Arrange some nicely stewed plums round the rice, pouring over all the syrup from the fruit.

Fruit Cup.—This is a good dish when cantaloupes are high priced. Fill sherbet glasses with cantaloupe scooped out with a teaspoon. Sprinkle this with chopped mint leaves, and pour over it a little grape juice or grape fruit juice.

Fruit Mush.—Fruit mushes served cold are generally appreciated.

spoonfuls flour and two of butter, beaten together. When thickened add four tablespoonfuls of sugar and eight eggs. When quite cold add whites of eggs well beaten, and bake in moderate oven twenty minutes; serve hot with sauce made of one-half cupful of butter beaten to a cream, one cupful sugar added gradually, white of one egg beaten stiff. Add flavoring to taste. This is a most excellent dessert.

Stuffed Peaches.—Pare six or eight peaches, cut in halves, and remove stones. Chop fine six almonds and six English walnuts. Fill the openings from which stones were taken with the chopped nuts. Fasten the halves together with tiny skewers, sprinkle four or five tablespoonfuls of sugar over them, and set in a saucepan with just enough water to keep from burning. Steam about ten minutes. Serve cold with cream.

CLEANING.

Carpet Cleaner.—To one bar of white soap cut fine in a gallon of water—let it boil until well dissolved—add one ounce of ether—and use with scrub brush, and take clear warm water and cloth to wipe off suds. Will renew all colors and make goods like new.

Cleaning Straw Hats.—Juice of one lemon, the same quantity of water, sulphur enough to make a thin paste. Take band off around hat. Apply paste over outside and under side of hat, using a small brush. Put hat outdoors in the sun until thoroughly dry. Then use a clean, stiff brush to brush off all particles of sulphur which may adhere to the hat.

Gasoline Cleaner.—Put gasoline in a bread raiser that has a cover into a tub of hot water to heat; put goods in you want to clean, close it up, and leave it for at least half an hour, when you are ready to work the goods in the same way as you would with cold gasoline, but it is surer to clean better. Do the work out of doors and there will be no explosion.

THE CZAR'S FOUR DAUGHTERS

Healthy, Happy Girls Who Have Been Brought up Simply.

The four daughters of the Czar made a pleasant impression on those who saw them during the visit of the Russian imperial family at Cowes, Isle of Wight. In their short white dresses, blue reefer coats and blue straw hats trimmed with folds of white chiffon, all exactly alike, they formed a pretty picture of healthy, happy childhood. Their first trip of exploration around Cowes was made with two governesses and they accomplished a great deal in two hours, buying all sorts of things at the shops—postcards, dolls, souvenir spoons, fancy work, and all the things that girls of from 8 to 14 like to possess, whether they are grand duchesses or just ordinary youngsters. They chummed with their British royal relatives, Princess Mary and Princess Edward and Albert.

Of the four, Olga, the oldest, who is 14, is the cleverest. Tall for her age, she has a graceful figure and a bright smile. Tatiana, the second daughter, is really a beautiful girl, with the roseleaf skin, curly dark hair and regular features of an English child. She is the only delicate one of the four girls. Marie is placid, well behaved and oblig-

PLAIN GIRL IS FAVORITE

WITH MANY PEOPLE SHE IS BEST LIKED.

The Girl Who is Denied Beauty May be Sunny Tempered and Comforting.

I wonder how many girls have fretted their hearts out because beauty has been denied them, writes a lady correspondent.

If you are plain the quickest way to make yourself plainer is by fretting and discontent.

Of course, it is nice to be pretty—no one can deny that, but if you are not, the best thing to do is to make the best of such good looks as you have.

Be a wise girl and say to yourself: "I am not pretty, now what can I do to make people forget my lack of beauty? What are my best qualities, and what can I do to make myself loved?"

In the first place try to be sunny-tempered; a frown on a plain face is a distressing sight. Think of others and their likes; make yourself a comfort to whomsoever you come in contact with. Never get sour; people do so hate a sour person.

I remember overhearing an old lady in the country discussing a number of children who lived at her farm during the summer. "It's a pity," said her daughter, "that Mollie is so plain."

"Oh, I do not know," said the old woman. "She is plain, but she's so comforting that I like her best of all the children. If she were pretty she might be spoiled and not nearly so sweet."

So perhaps you can be "comforting," and believe me, you will make many friends if you are.

MORE THAN GOOD LOOKS.

I do not say that all pretty girls are spoiled, for I have known many girls who were as lovely in disposition as in face; but I do say that the plain girls need not despair nor fret because of their plainness. Some foolish people will tell you that men only care for beauty and that the pretty girls get all the attention.

That's not so, my dears, for the man who is worth looking at twice demands something better than mere good looks in the girl he loves.

The pretty girls have a slight start because men seeing their good looks are attracted and are asked to meet them, but a man very quickly finds out a girl's true worth, and now-a-days a pretty face and empty head are not enough.

MAKE PEOPLE LIKE YOU.

Listen to what people have to say; don't try to make them listen to you, and never answer at random. You must look interested while they talk, even if they are discussing some hobby which you do not understand; ask them to explain it.

Be nice to your own sex; you can't afford to lose the friendship of other girls.

Be ready for what ever fun is on hand and don't be critical. No one is so tiresome and discouraging as the person who always finds fault.

Just remember this, girl, whether you are plain or pretty, the great-

THE S. S. LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, SEPT. 19.

Lesson XII. Third Quarterly Review. Golden Text, Acts 19: 20.

SIMPLE PLANS FOR REVIEW.

Not very long ago Bishop Quayle, with great wisdom, advised the Sunday school teachers of Methodism to regard each Review as a bird's-eye view of a large landscape, not as a process of analysis or dissection. In travelling along a road we are taken up with first this and then that; we see things by fragments. The Review comes to show us that we are not studying things, but a thing, to give us the vision of the whole. The bishop described a learned man who could break up a human life in all its fragments; physiology, anatomy, neurology, psychology, nerve, muscle, valve, gray matter, white matter, thought, affection, volition. But what society and God need is not the fragments of a man, but the living man; and what we need from our quarter's lessons is not eleven bits of lessons, but the one great vital truth. That truth in this case, hangs on the little word which our Golden Text begins: So—"So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed." These words were first written in connection with the story of Paul's adventures at Ephesus, but they apply equally to all the lessons.

If we ask, "How did the word of God grow mightily and prevail?" we may find in our eleven successive Golden Texts the gist of our replies.

Christianity grows, in the first place (Lesson I.), by God's direct impulse and guidance, by the obedience of his servants, and by the hospitality of honest inquirers. God sent the message, "Come over into Macedonia"; Paul went "immediately"; Lydia attended to his teachings and was blessed and made a blessing.

In the second place (Lesson II.) the growth of the word of God depends on saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, which, as we have previously noted, consists of three things; belief in a doctrine, dependence on a promise, and fidelity to a Person.

Lesson III. shows how the study of God's written Word, searching the Scriptures, brings about the progress of his cause.

The essential spirituality of all true worship comes to our notice in Lesson IV. There can be no real worship except "in spirit and in truth."

The story of Lesson V. is a beautiful exemplification of its Golden Text—a world full of tribulation; a Saviour full of helpfulness and cheer.

Lesson VI. gives in detail instructions how to live an effective Christian life by doing no evil and ever following that which is good.

The conditions in Ephesus which brought about the magnifying of the name of the Lord Jesus (Lesson VII.) will bring about similar results everywhere.

Lesson VIII. shows how apparent defeat is turned by God into real victory: "My strength is made perfect in weakness."

last. Fill sherbet glasses with cantaloupe. When cantaloupes are high priced. Fill sherbet glasses with cantaloupe scooped out with a teaspoon. Sprinkle this with chopped mint leaves, and pour over it a little grape juice or grape fruit juice.

Fruit Mush.—Fruit mushes served cold are generally appreciated in place of the usual cereal. Blackberries, currants, or raspberries are suitable as a foundation. Slowly heat the fruit until scalded, then press out the juice. Put it into a double boiler; sweeten to taste. To each pint add one tablespoonful of farina and cook, stirring frequently for three-quarters of an hour. Pour into one large mold or into individual molds and set aside till morning.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Corn Pudding.—Six ears fresh corn cut from the cob or one can of sweet corn, three eggs beaten light, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, but not oiled, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of flour. Butter a baking dish plentifully, pour in the mixture, and bake in a hot oven three-quarters of an hour. No baking powder or soda is needed, only pepper and salt to taste, to be served and eaten as a vegetable.

Baked Tomatoes.—Wash tomatoes, cut off tops, remove inside, and make a filling of one part tomato (remove seeds), one part bread crumbs, and two parts corn, either green or canned. Season with salt, butter, and one green pepper to six tomatoes. Be sure to remove seeds from the pepper. Put tops on tomatoes and bake slowly in a well-buttered pan for thirty minutes.

Creamed Red Radishes.—Take four bunches of small red radishes, put in cold water over night, partly peel, cut in round slices not too thin, let stand in salt water for two hours, put on to boil in cold water with two slices of bacon, and one teaspoonful of salt, boil thirty-five minutes, drain, melt a large tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, three tablespoonfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper. Stir until smooth, with a cup and a half of milk or cream, let boil five minutes, add radishes, let simmer for a few minutes, and serve in ramekins with chicken croquettes, roast lamb, or veal.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Cold Tomato Catsup.—One peck ripe tomatoes chopped fine, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of black mustard seed, one teaspoonful of white mustard seed, one teaspoonful of chopped onions, one teaspoonful of brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls of celery seed, two tablespoonfuls of black pepper, two teaspoonfuls of mixed cinnamon, one teaspoonful of mixed cloves, three pints of cold strong vinegar, horse radish to taste. This is easily made, requires no cooking, and keeps indefinitely if corked tight.

Cold Chile Sauce.—One peck ripe tomatoes; peel, chop and drain one and one-half cupfuls chopped celery, six large onions chopped, four red peppers chopped, one cupful mustard seed, one-half cupful salt, one tablespoonful cinnamon, three pints of vinegar, two pounds brown sugar. Put this in glass jars, screw the tops on tight, and keep in a cool dark place.

DELICIOUS DESSERTS.

Delicious Pudding.—To two cupfuls of boiling milk add four tablespoons of sugar, a bright smile. Tatiana, the second daughter, is really a beautiful girl, with the roseleaf skin, curly dark hair and regular features of an English child. She is the only delicate one of the four girls. Marie is placid, well behaved and obliging.

Anastasie, the youngest, is described by her governess, Miss Eager, as "a regular little pickle." Her name Anastasie, which means chain breaker, or prison opener, was given to her because to celebrate her birth the Czar pardoned and reinstated the students taking part in the riots in Moscow and St. Petersburg in the preceding winter.

All the grand duchesses speak English, French and some German besides Russian. From an early age they have all had lessons in piano playing, drawing and painting. All four are excellent riders. After their lessons and games they always spend an hour or so working at knitting and embroidery. For Christmas they work all sorts of gifts for relatives and friends. Last year the Czar received a kettle holder from one of his daughters with an inscription worked in cross stitch: "Polly, Put the Kettle On," while two of the other girls went into partnership and knitted him a pair of slippers.

The Russian grand duchesses have been brought up with just the same simplicity which has marked the childhood of the little Wales children. Indeed it was only lately that they began to retelize their rank. The magnate of the Russian nursery is the young Czarovitch. All his sisters bow before him and his will is law.

LONDON'S SUBWAY SYSTEM.

A Network With a Total Length of Over 145 Miles.

London is under-run by a network of subways, or tubes to use the British name for an underground line. These roads have been constructed and are still owned and operated by wholly or partly independent companies.

Thus, says Moody's Magazine, there is the Metropolitan line (the old Underground), 71 miles in length; the Metropolitan District line, 28 miles in length; the Great Northern and Piccadilly line, 9½ miles in length, which is a double tunnel worked by electric motor power; the Baker Street and Waterloo line, 9½ miles in length, which was originally one of Whitaker Wright's enterprises; the Charing Cross, Euston and Hampstead line, about 8 miles in length; the Central London line, 6½ miles in length, which consists of two separate parallel tunnels worked by electric motor power on the multiple unit system; the Waterloo and City line, about 2 miles in length; the Great Northern and City line, from Finsbury Park to Moorgate street, about 3½ miles in length, and the City and South London line, from Clapham Common to the north end of City road, Islington, with an authorized mileage of 12½ miles, something over half of which is in operation.

These lines cross and intersect at various points, making it possible by transfers to go almost anywhere underground. The total mileage—constructed, authorized, and projected—is 145½ miles, and the total authorized capital of the nine existing companies is £61,553,996.

Be ready for what ever fun is on hand and don't be critical. No one is so tiresome and discouraging as the person who always finds fault. Just remember this, girl, whether you are plain or pretty, the greatest beauty of all is the beauty of expression, and that can only come if your heart is good and sweet.

Keep yourself wholesome by fresh air, exercise and sensible hours, and if, added to that, you are cheerful and kind, you need not fear that you will not be popular, nor need you fret over your plainness.

HE GOT THE JOB.

A hardware store advertised for an errand-boy. As it happened, the boss was talking to a customer when a boy came in. Thinking he wanted to buy something he excused himself, and going over to the boy asked him what he could do for him.

The boy told him that he came in answer to his advertisement and asked for the job.

Well, of course, the boss got mad by being disturbed while he was talking to a customer. He said to the boy:—

"You go outside and walk on. If I call you back, why, I will hire you; if I don't, why, you just keep right on walking."

The boy did as he was told, but on going out he picked up a shovel that was standing near the door, put it on his back, and started down the street.

Before he had gone ten yards the old man was after him yelling, "Come back! Come back!"

The boy came back, took off his coat, and asked where he wanted him to work, downstairs or upstairs, or where.

The man took one good look at him and said: "I guess you're the sort of boy I want. Never mind putting your coat on. Start right in."

WOMAN! EVER UNREASONABLE.

VII.) will bring about similar results everywhere.

Lesson VIII. shows how apparent defeat is turned by God into real victory: "My strength is made perfect in weakness."

From Lesson IX. we learn (what may be illustrated also by next Sunday's lesson) that the kernel of the Christian religion is love.

Lessons X. and XI., each in its own way and by its story, teach how genuine adherence to Christ brings real victory to the Christian.

All these stories studied Sunday after Sunday during the quarter may be recalled by the words of our Golden Text: "So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed."

THE HINDU SCHOOLBOY.

His Chief Fault is That of Carrying Tales.

The pupils in schools in India are much more amenable to discipline than our boys. Dr. T. L. Pennell, the author of "Among the Wild Tribes of the Afghan Frontier," says that the Indian school-boy has not yet lost the ancient traditional respect and love of the pupil for the master, and therefore wins the sympathy and interest of his instructors.

His chief failing in his incorrigible propensity to what is known in English schools as "sneaking"; schoolboy honor and esprit de corps are being developed in mission schools, but have very little basis on which to build.

"Please, sir, Mahtab Din has been pinching me."

"Shuja'at 'Ali has stolen my book."

"Ram Chand has spilt ink on my copy-book."

If the master is willing to listen to tales of this kind, he will get a continuous supply of them all day long.

There is much greater diversity in the school status of the boys in an Indian school than in English schools. In the Bannu Mission School every class of the community is represented, from the son of the rich landowner to that of the laborer, from the Brahman to the outcast, and not only do they get on well together without the poor boy having to feel by taunt or treatment that he is unwelcome or despised, but I have often come across genuine acts of charity which have been done quite naturally and without any ostentation; in fact, such deeds are kept secret in the majority of cases.

Thus a poor boy, unable to buy his books, has had them supplied to him by the richer boys of his class. In one case a poor boy was left quite destitute by the death of his father, and some of the boys arranged a small subscription month by month to enable him to remain at school.

SAME THING.

"Did she refuse him?" "Practically; she said she would not marry him till he arrived at years of discretion."

HOW HE GOT IT.

"Do you remember the first dollar you ever earned, Sam?" "Deed I does, boss; my wife guv it t' me."

Lochelly school board is to spend $75,000 on new buildings.

THE MYSTERIOUS KEY

OR, PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The key was inserted, turned half-round, and the mystery was instantly solved as that painted iron plate sprang outward from its place.

"Aha! that is indeed a very clever arrangement!" remarked the president, in a tone of satisfaction; "and I am exceedingly obliged to you, Mr. Winchester, for taking the trouble to come to point it out to me."

"You are very welcome, sir," Gerald courteously replied.

"I wonder if there is anything in the place now?" said the other gentleman curiously.

"I am quite sure there is not," said Gerald. "Mr. Brewster did not mention anything but the two boxes when he commissioned me to come here for them."

"It cannot do any harm to investigate," the banker observed, as he thrust his hand deep into the aperture. "Aha!" he suddenly ejaculated again, in a tone of triumph, when, upon drawing it forth, Gerald espied a small book clasped in his fingers.

Bringing the light to bear upon it, they saw there was a label on the cover.

"Notes of European travel, 18—" the gentleman read aloud. Gerald started violently, the hot color rising over his face.

That was the very year of his mother's marriage.

"May I look at it, sir?" he questioned, with repressed excitement.

"Certainly—certainly," said his companion, as he cheerfully passed it to him.

With a hand that trembled visibly, Gerald opened it and hastily scanned a few pages here and there, his heart beating with great, startled throbs as he read.

"Mr. Bancroft," he at length remarked, "I believe that this little book will prove to be of the most vital importance in the forthcoming contest for the Brewster fortune, and with your permission I will take it to Mr. Lytleton."

"Certainly you have my permission. I have no right whatever to the book, and if there is anything in it that will bring that rascally guardian of the late Mr. Brewster's pretty daughter to justice and give the rightful heirs the property, no one will be more glad than I. I have believed from the first that the man was guilty of the foulest fraud. That was a sad fate the poor little girl met with!" Mr. Bancroft responded.

It had been thought best not to reveal the facts regarding Allison's wonderful escape and recovery until she should appear in court to confront the man who had so deeply wronged her.

The young man then bade the banker good morning, and, with the priceless little book buttoned close against his heart, hurried back to Mr. Lytleton's office.

"What on earth is the matter, Gerald?" that gentleman exclaimed anxiety if I did not hear from her by every steamer."

Page after page Gerald turned, searching for these significant allusions to the dear one so reluctantly left behind.

There were various bright and animated accounts of people, places and things. Paris was described in a vivacious way, which betrayed that the writer thoroughly appreciated the gay city and its inhabitants. The affectionate welcome received from his mother and other friends who were to comprise the party which was going to the "land of the midnight sun" was faithfully and vividly recorded; but through all there ran that plaintive note—"No letter from M."

The reader followed the writer through Norway and Sweden, and many other places en route, and his own heart ached in sympathy with that of the impatient and unwilling tourist, whose hopes were never realized.

It was evident that his anxiety so preyed upon his mind that he was at times really ill on account of it, for mention was frequently made of having been "laid up for a day or two," and also of his mother's annoyance at having her trip interrupted because of it.

Their tour had evidently been extended far beyond the time at first determined upon, for months were passed in traveling from place to place.

Mention was made several times of a determination to break away from the party and go directly home—the "anxiety and suspense were becoming intolerable"; but these resolutions were always apparently overruled by the entreaties or commands of his mother.

At last there came an entry that was almost paralyzing, for it comprised but one word, and was the only one upon the page:

"Dead!"

The next entry was two days later, and read thus:

"Good heavens! How have I lived since receiving those home papers? Who could have sent me that New Haven paper with that paragraph marked? It looks as if some one had discovered our secret, and was flaunting it with cruel spite in my face. Dead! my darling dead! No, no! I cannot—will not believe it. And yet there it is in black and white, and branded on my brain in letters of fire: 'We learn with deep regret of the recent death, of quick consumption, of Miss Miriam Harris, who was a beautiful and talented young lady, and a resident of this city for many years.' That is all—vague, mysterious, maddening! Where did she die, and when, and who cared for her? There is no date given! I shall go mad! I must go home at once, to learn the truth. Oh, my love! my love!"

got into his trunk by mistake. But my suspicions being aroused frightened the fellow almost to death, and he confessed that, by my father's orders, he had intercepted every letter addressed to New Haven. He could easily do this, as it had always been his duty to attend to the mailing of all letters, as well as to the collecting of them, wherever we went.

"Having gleaned that much from him, I went downstairs and faced my father, and we had it out between us, hot and heavy. He saw that the truth must come, and he concealed nothing. He had heard of my attentions to M. while I was in college, and he commissioned some one to watch me; but it was only when I was on the point of graduating that he learned that I was actually married to her. He was in a terrible rage at first; he could not endure the scandal of such a misalliance, for he at once set his wits to work to find some way for me out of the scrape. Hence his plot and his orders to go abroad. Tom, the valet, was sent along to act, with my mother, as a spy, and with instructions to intercept every letter that was mailed to or sent from New Haven. This he felt sure would result in making M. feel that she had been deserted in cold blood if kept up long enough, and so he rested and left matters to take their own course for a while.

"At length he thought the time ripe for action, and he went to see her and try to browbeat her into suing for a divorce upon the ground of desertion. But she had disappeared from New Haven, and no one could tell him anything about her. Later he received a paper from his spy in New Haven, and found, to his great relief, that it contained a notice of M.'s death. That settled everything. I was free, and there was no further need of making excuses to keep me abroad. The same mail that bore that fatal paper to me contained a letter to my mother bidding her come home, a summons which she would gladly have obeyed immediately, but for my long illness. This is the cursed story which I wrung from my father. When it was finished I left the house in a white heat of passion, swearing that I would never enter it again."

Two days later:

"Have been to New Haven to seek some tidings of my dear one. Could get no trace of her. She left the little house on — Street some time during the winter. The place was sold shortly after, and nothing was ever known of her afterward, except the fact of her death. Then I went to Ashton, a little town in Rhode Island, where I knew her parents were buried. Ah, me! There I found a new-made grave, which told its own sad story. My heart was torn asunder again, and I came away without asking a single question. Am sorry now, though, that I did not hunt up the sexton and get the date of her death and burial, but that I can do later."

Two months after, and written at the Parker House, Boston, Mass.:

"Came to Boston on the tenth to attend the wedding of an old chum. Met the Porter sisters again. Miss Alice, strangely enough, was a bridesmaid. She is really a charming girl, and has promised to correspond with me."

A WEAK STOMACH BRINGS MISERY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restore Despondent Sufferers to Health.

Nothing is so distressing as a weak stomach—the victims of this trouble suffer from indigestion, biliousness, dizziness and frequent headaches. No food agrees with them—meal time is a time of misery; not a time of pleasure. Relief from this suffering can be found through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they never fail to make the weak stomach strong; to banish the distressing headaches; biliousness and dizziness. Mrs. C. S. Steeves, of Hillsboro, N. B., is one of the many who have been cured through the use of these pills. She says:—"I suffered very much from stomach trouble and would often leave the table without tasting food. I got no relief worth speaking of till I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They gradually restored my health and strength and now I am as well as ever I was. I would earnestly recommend them to all those who suffer as I did."

It is the blood—bad blood—that is the cause of nine-tenths of the ailments from which both men and women suffer. The blood is the life-giving fluid of the body. When the blood is bad it is bound to poison some part of the human system and thus it is that rheumatism, kidney trouble, indigestion, headaches and backaches and a host of other troubles make their appearance. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all these troubles—and they cure them thoroughly—simply because they fill the veins with rich red blood. The genuine Pills bearing the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A NEIGHBORLY CONSPIRACY.

How Mr. Grimes Was Cured of Early Rising.

Mr. Grimes had a large lawn in front of his house and another at the side, and it was his custom to get up and run his lawnmower at five o'clock in the morning. In vain his neighbors protested. In vain they complained that he woke them up just when they were sleeping the soundest, and that they could not go to sleep again.

"Nobody has any business snoozing after five o'clock," he said. "Go to bed early and get up early. That's the way I do. Think I'm going to wait half a day for you people to sleep off the effect of your late hours, when my grass needs cutting! I guess not!"

Then his neighbors did a little planning. They found out that he went to bed at nine o'clock, and they made their arrangements accordingly. Punctually at nine o'clock the next moonlight evening the sound of a lawn-mower in action was heard directly across the street from the Grimes dwelling. Presently another one chimed in, then another and another, and in less than fifteen minutes at least a dozen were in active operation. At ten o'clock or thereabouts an wonderful escape and recovery until she should appear in court to confront the man who had so deeply wronged her.

The young man then bade the banker good morning, and, with the priceless little book buttoned close against his heart, hurried back to Mr. Lyttleton's office.

"What on earth is the matter, Gerald?" that gentleman exclaimed the moment he opened the door; "you look as if you had seen a ghost!"

"I have—a very tangible ghost of the past," said the young man, with repressed excitement. "I believe that I have in my possession all missing links connected with my mother's history, and ample material, as well, to solve the mystery of my father's apparent desertion of her."

And eagerly drawing forth the precious book which had been discovered in the secret vault, he laid it before his friend, and explained where and how he had come by it.

"Gerald, if that is the case, you are a lucky fellow," cried Mr. Lyttleton, starting up, all on the alert.

"But here," he added, after glancing at the label and passing it back; "you must first read it by yourself—there may be some things in it that no one but yourself should know."

Gerald stood regarding it a moment with an air of indecision. Then he took it mechanically, and, sitting down at his desk, opened it and began to read.

The first entry in the book, which was evidently a diary, had been made on shipboard, and read thus:

"Germanic, 8 p.m., June 23, 18—. Sailed at 12 M., but I am blamed if I like the way in which I have been hustled off; but father insisted that I must join mother in Paris by the eighth of July, and no other vessel would leave in season. I'm deuced lonesome, in spite of the fact that the governor sent Tom, his valet, along with me—to preserve the importance of the family, I suppose, since we are going to the North Cape with a swell crowd. Bah! I abominate style, and I've no earthly use for a valet. Poor M.! It was tough on both of us, when we had everything planned for such a cozy time all by ourselves. The Germanic is a dandy boat, every convenience, fast sailer, first-class table. The only thing lacking is the heart to enjoy it all; but that I've left behind me."

Every day of the ensuing voyage was noted, various items of interest recorded, the captain, crew, and passengers described, and in almost every entry there was also some allusion to "M.," which plainly revealed a heart hungering for some loved presence.

On the last day at sea there was this record:

"Have written a long letter to my dear girl over yonder, which I shall mail the moment we land; but I feel as if I can hardly wait for the next vessel to arrive, when I shall surely hear from her."

There was nothing of special interest for several pages, until, under date ten days later, in Paris, Gerald read:

"No letter! What can it mean? Tom brought me in a whole pile this morning, but not the one I wished for above all others. Surely M. could not have neglected to write knowing that I would be wild with Miss Miriam Harris, who was a beautiful and talented young lady, and a resident of this city for many years. That is all—vague, mysterious, maddening! Where did she die, and when, and who cared for her? There is no date given! I shall go mad! I must go home at once, to learn the truth. Oh, my love! my love!"

The record ended abruptly here, and for upward of six weeks nothing more was written in the diary.

Then the journal was resumed, in London:

"Have been ill for many weeks, and would have been glad if the end had come; but my dreary life seems likely to be prolonged indefinitely. I thank the fates, however, that my mother is at last weary of wandering, and we are to go home some time within the next fortnight."

The next entry of any interest to Gerald was made on shipboard:

"Have been terribly seasick for two days—something unusual for me; but when the body suffers, the heart lets up a little. Went on deck for a while this afternoon, and met a Miss Porter and her sister. The latter's a sweet little blonde who reminds me strongly of M. They are returning from a visit to some friends in England."

Three days afterward occurred this:

"Had an enjoyable promenade on the upper deck with little Miss Porter. She is a very winning little body—she appeared to divine at once that I had some secret sorrow, and her manner was full of a gentle, indescribable sympathy. She makes me think of M. more and more."

There was nothing additional for a couple of weeks, and then there were three or four pages that were full of fire and passion:

"Made a discovery to-day that has almost made a murderer of me, and I must let off steam, or do some desperate deed. I have been hoodwinked for months. I have been the victim of the most diabolical plot that was ever conceived against a human being. My father, by some means unknown to me, discovered the fact of my marriage to M. some time last summer, and, instead of ranting and tearing and denouncing me, he craftily set himself at work to parry us, and he succeeded but too well. He planned that trip abroad to Norway, Sweden, and all those other tiresome places for the sole purpose of getting me out of the way, to enable him to mature some scheme to separate me from my darling. Alas! grief and death aided him in this but too effectually; for, of course, she must have grieved herself to death over the belief that I had cruelly deserted her."

"The cat was let out of the bag in a strange way. I wanted Tom to do an errand for me this morning and when he did not answer the bell I set about hunting him up. I found him in his own room, overhauling his trunk. He had just turned it upside down as I entered, and among a lot of rubbish I espied a letter that had a familiar look. I captured it. It was one that I had given him to mail to M. when I first reached London. I pounced upon him like a cat upon a mouse, and demanded the meaning of it. At first he swore that it must have

at the Parker House, Boston, Mass.:

"Came to Boston on the tenth to attend the wedding of an old chum. Met the Porter sisters again. Miss Alice, strangely enough, was a bridesmaid. She is really a charming girl, and has promised to correspond with me."

There were various entries after this, but nothing of especial importance until at the end of three months, when the following was written:

"The governor died this morning; sent for me last night, and begged my forgiveness for the wrong done me. I tried to be kind, but in my heart I could not forgive him; but I promised him that I would always care for my mother. He has left everything to me, and I am to carry on the banking business just the same as he had done for the last twenty years."

There was very little more relating to Gerald's mother, although the diary was continued irregularly for more than a year. Then there was a skip of nearly two years before another date was added, and that was the last record in the book:

"To-morrow I am going to marry lovely Alice Porter. She is very like my lost one, and I have grown very fond of her. I have never told her of my marriage, and I never shall. It is an episode in my life which I believe no one else living knows anything about. Life once more looks very inviting to me, and I will try to atone by my devotion to Alice for the great mistake which I made three years ago. Secret marriages are a device of his satanic majesty to trap the unwary and ruin the lives of innocent girls. Now, good-bye, my companion of many sorrowful hours! I should never have had you but for my promise to M. to keep a diary while I was abroad. I shall never talk to you again, for I am going to burn you as soon as the fire is lighted in my office in the morning, and so end forever the first volume of my life, which no one must ever read. I trust the sequel will bring me happier days."

Jack—"Was her father violent when you asked for her hand?" Tom—"Was he? Great Scott! I thought he would shake my hand off!"

"You must drink hot water with your whisky," the doctor told his patient; "otherwise you mustn't take it at all." "But how shall I get the hot water?" the patient queried, plaintively. "My wife won't let me have it for the whisky toddy." "Tell her you want to shave," the doctor said, and took his departure. The next day the doctor called and asked the wife how his patient was. "He's gone raving mad," he wife replied. "He shaves every ten minutes."

accordingly. Punctually at nine o'clock the next moonlight evening the sound of a lawn-mower in action was heard directly across the street from the Grimes dwelling. Presently another one chimed in, then another and another, and in less than fifteen minutes at least a dozen were in active operation.

At ten o'clock or thereabouts an upper window in the Grimes house was closed with a vicious bang, but the rattle of the machines ceased not, and the noise became even louder. It was a bright night, and the industrious neighbors, bare-headed and in their shirt-sleeves, appeared to be enjoying their exercise. There was no more grass to be cut, but they continued to go through the motions. In accordance with the prearranged plan, there was no conversation. The lawn-mowers were permitted to make all the noise, and they needed no assistance.

At eleven o'clock the window that had been closed was opened again, and the unkempt head of Mr. Grimes was thrust forth.

"Say," he called out, "how long are you fellows going to keep up that racket?"

"Not more than an hour longer," answered a voice.

"Well, say," spoke Mr. Grimes again, after a pause, "if I'll agree not to run my lawn-mower before seven o'clock in the morning after this, will you stop that noise and let me go to sleep?"

"We will."

"Well, it's a bargain," he said.

WHAT THE DOCTOR KNEW.

Dan T— was on trial for assault with intent to kill. It was given in evidence that the prisoner had struck the injured man on the head with an iron bar, and so fractured the skull that a portion of the brain actually protruded. Yet the man recovered. The only hope of saving the prisoner from conviction was to weaken the evidence of the doctor who attended the wounded man by making him contradict himself. This was undertaken by a counsel who was more remarkable for impertinence to witnesses than for legal ability.

"Now, doctor," said the lawyer, "did I understand you to say in your direct testimony that the man's skull was so badly fractured that the brains actually obtruded from the wound?"

"That was my evidence."

"And do you pretend to say that a man can lose a portion of his brains and still live?"

"Oh, yes," replied the doctor. "I have known men to live and practise law without any brains at all."

It is an undisputed fact that one packet of Wilson's Fly Pads has actually killed a bushel of house flies. Fortunately no such quantity can ever be found in a well kept house, but whether they be few or many Wilson's Fly Pads will kill them all.

New Tenant—"Look here, you'll have to make some alteration in this place. It's not fit for a pigsty." Landlord—"I didn't know you wanted it for a pigsty. I thought you wanted it to live in."

CALF CHOLERA.

Calf cholera is characterized by an unnatural, increased action of the bowels, the trouble usually originating from some derangement of the digestive organs. Indigestion often results from inactivity of the bowels, improper feeding, or from being improperly housed.

The activity of the digestive organs can be greatly increased by properly exercising the animals and giving them plenty of fresh air and sunlight.

When the digestive organs cease to do their natural duty the calf is subject to diarrhoea or scours, which at this stage is not infectious, but later on the germs may propagate and multiply, causing the animal to become afflicted with an infectious disease, which is commonly called scours in calves, but properly called calf cholera.

Calf cholera differs from diarrhoea in the full grown animal, taking the form of an infectious, intestinal catarrh which is of a far more serious nature than diarrhoea, usually appearing suddenly in young calves and in many instances causing death.

Owing to the fact that this is a germ disease, it is very important that the calf has none of the germs in its system before it is born and for this reason proper care and attention should be given the mother while she is pregnant.

When an animal is afflicted with the germs of this disease the rest of the herd should be protected against same by moving the healthy animals into new quarters and carefully disinfecting the stables wherein they are housed and giving each animal a laxative to rid the bowels of the irritating contents, after which it should be given calf cholera medicine. The roots of tail and hind quarters should be thoroughly washed with a disinfectant.—Dr. David Roberts.

CURE FOR A KICKING COW.

To cure a kicking cow is often a difficult and tedious task, and, unless some method of restraining them from kicking is adopted more loss than profit may result through spilt milk. The person milking also runs considerable risk of injury in some form or other.

When the cause of kicking can only be assigned to vice or an acquired bad habit, the following little arrangement will be found useful, and, at the same time, simple, harmless, effective, inexpensive and easily applied. A strap about one inch wide should be buckled round each hind leg a little and to the rain and the fresh waters, sea derived, we owe all fertility on earth.

The old Greeks therefore worshipped Poseidon as the fortune giver through his springs. They gave him horses, his precious beasts, and they adored the footprints of horses when they found them, for they might be the very footprints of the god himself.

When horses came to be shod the transition of the luck emblem from the footprint itself to the shoe mark—practically the same thing—was easy.

Pegasus, the winged horses, from whose hoofs the water springs gushed copiously when he came to earth, has been credited with the origin of the horseshoe luck.

The horseshoe was the specific against earthquakes. It would keep a house safe from harm by earth shaking. Again one perceives the sea myth—Poseidon was the shaker of the earth.

APPETITE OF THE RUSSIAN.

A newspaper describes the dinner given by a Russian naval officer to his brother officers. By way of an appetizer there were served salt fish, smoked salmon, imported herring, Bologna sausage, pickles, potato salad, vodka (Russian whisky), and Scotch whisky. An hour later the dinner proper began. A Russian vegetable soup, "of excellent savor, but unspellable and unpronounceable," was first served. Next came a whole baked salmon, "of regal dimensions," stuffed with brown cracked wheat. This was followed by an entire roast pig, whose "inards" were filled with vegetables. Next came a peculiar Russian pie of meat, fish and vegetables cut into slices and garnished with mustard. Then a Russian salad, and lastly dessert, the whole having been convoked with champagne and liquors galore.

SOME LARGE SALARIES.

Some interesting inside facts are occasionally divulged in regard to the enormous salaries earned by some insurance agents.

It is reported that two agents recently appointed by the National Life Assurance Company in one of our large western cities have earned over Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) a month from the time they started to get business for this Company. Of course, these men are hustlers, and are well equipped in every way, possessing even small motor cars to cover the territory more rapidly.

We understand, however, that any man who has real ability in this line could do as well.

One of the reasons for the success of National Life agents is the splendid standing of the Company which is shown in their advertisement elsewhere in this paper. If it has ever occurred to you to take up the Life Insurance business you cannot make arrangements with an easier Company to secure business for than the National Life. And they need a good agent right in this territory. Communicate with the head office.

Mr. Martin (who is boarding out for a few days)—"By the way, Mrs. Perkins, I must confess the mutton we had for dinner to-day is not the kind of meat to which I have been accustomed." Mrs. Perkins—"Very likely not, sir. I alwiz

QUAINT CHINESE CEREMONY.

About sixty Chinamen proceeded to the graves of two recently-buried Celestials in Anfield Cemetery, Liverpool. A gigantic tray carried by four Chinamen, and containing foods, including a fully-grown roasted pig decorated with red rosettes, cooked fowls, beefsteaks, oranges, and sweets, was brought on the scene. A bottle or two of Scotch whisky, flanked with egg-cups and liqueur glasses, were also placed on one of the graves. The spirit was plentifully poured upon the meats and rice was sprinkled upon the grave and afterwards josticks, paper offerings, and boxes of crackers were burnt. The explosion of the fireworks made a lively diversion in the otherwise solemn proceedings.

VILLAGE RULED BY WOMEN.

The village of Froissy, near Paris, furnishes arguments for the Suffragist cause in that nearly all the important posts are filled by women. Passengers alighting at the railway station are met by a woman, who is stationmaster, whilst her husband is only a guard. A barber's shop bears the notice that "Mlle. Jeanne" will "henceforth shave her customers only on Tuesdays and Fridays, as she has undertaken other work." At the post-office the local telegraph messenger and postman, Mme. Lessobre, is met. She walks on an average twenty miles a day. The municipal drummer is a woman in her ninetieth year.

ST. MARGARET'S COLLEGE, TORONTO.

St. Margaret's College is thoroughly equipped to prepare students for Matriculation and all examinations in Music, Art, Domestic Science, Physical Education and for School Athletics, Cricket, Tennis, Basketball, Hockey, Tobogganing, Swimming and Horseback riding.

PLAYING TOO SAFE.

A prisoner at the sessions had been duly convicted of theft, when it was seen, on "proving previous convictions," that he had actually been in prison at the time the theft was committed. "Why didn't you say so?" asked the judge of the prisoner angrily.

"Your Lordship, I was afraid of prejudicing the jury against me."

HONESTY IN ADVERTISING

Is of prime importance. The man who over advertises hurts himself more than as if he advertised none. The Gillette Safety Razor people claim no quality for their article in the columns of the daily press that the dealer would not claim face to face with the prospective customer. Plain every-day, clear-cut talk is the most impressive to the plain Canadian citizen that reads it. Dealers and consumers should appreciate these methods.

Church—"You say he's in the corn-producing business?" Gotham—"Yes, indirectly." "I don't understand you." "Why, he's a shoe manufacturer."

more loss than milk. The person milking also runs considerable risk of injury in some form or other.

When the cause of kicking can only be assigned to vice or an acquired bad habit, the following little arrangement will be found useful, and, at the same time, simple, harmless, effective, inexpensive and easily applied. A strap about one inch wide should be buckled round each hind leg a little above the hock, sufficiently tight to compress the hamstring.

The animal cannot kick, and if flies are troublesome and cause her to switch her tail, the best plan is to either strap it to her leg or secure it to one of the straps with a piece of cord. Use the straps every time the animal is milked, and after three weeks or so omit, to ascertain whether a cure has been effected or not.—Irish Farming World.

HOGS AND ALFALFA.

As to the amount of pasturage or the number of hogs alfalfa will carry per acre without injury to the crop, the estimates given by farmers vary very considerably, depending on the kind of soil, the fertility of the land, and the size of the hogs' pasture. The following, however, is a safe estimate, as given by conservative men who have had much experience. Upland of fair average fertility will support from eight to ten head of the 50 to 125 pound hogs. There are fields that have supported 35 head per acre through the season for a number of years, and are still in good condition; and there are other fields that will not furnish pasture for more than five head per acre, but these are extremes. When a field is only used for pasture it is better to divide it into several lots and move the hogs from one to the other as occasion requires.—Coburn's Swine in America.

LUCK IN THE HORSESHOE.

Myth is Traced to the Greeks and Their Sea God Poseidon.

Of all the emblems for good fortune the horseshoe stands among the first. Everybody knows it is unlucky to pass a horseshoe on the road without picking it up. It is a luck emblem of the greatest power. Again we are indebted for this statement to old tales, centuries in age, that have descended from father to son, from mother to daughter, through the years, says the Team Owner's Gazette.

The old myths repay research. The luck of the horseshoe has a most respectable beginning. It is traced to the religion of the old Greeks and their sea god Poseidon, who was identical with the Roman sea god Neptune.

To Poseidon horses were sacred, and to him they were sacrificed. Poseidon was believed to have created the first horse when he struck the ground with his trident and a horse sprang from the hole, which afterward became a spring. The sea god was the lord of springs. To him all springs were ascribed. In the shape of a horse he sometimes wandered by the shores of his ocean domain, and where he struck his hoofs deeply there the waters gushed out and permanent springs were found.

This is the reason why horseshoes are reckoned lucky. Going to the root of the matter one sees a nature myth as the root principle. From the sea all rain comes and to the sea all springs owe primal origin.

A Knight For a Day.

This first-class production is booked to appear at the Brisco Opera House, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th. The Detroit Free Press, of September 7th, says:—"Animation is a living part of every feature of "A Knight for a Day." Moreover, it is disciplined and regulated animation, therefore artistic, good to look upon and productive of pleasure to the spectator of it. The setting of the second act is unqualifiedly beautiful; the chorus is an engaging body of young women, and the devices introduced lend peculiar distinction to the work. Among the especially striking numbers of this class are "Life is a See-Saw," "The Little Girl in Blue," "The Garden of Dreams." The first act finale, with its illusion of falling stars and its concrete fact of pretty girls holding illuminated flowers between their lips, is a happy effect, in which color and grace struggle for precedence."

I WANT 500 MEN AND WOMEN THIS WINTER.

That do not want to burn any more coal or wood than they need to put them through the winter comfortably.
I am building and selling a cook-stove, that is built on entirely new design.
It has a damper draft at each end of the fire pot drawing the cold air from the floor. You will not have any more cold feet or floors. It burns more air than other stoves. Heating and cooking is done with much less fuel, nearly half less. In short I will put this range in your homes at my risk and expense on probation.
After you try it, and you like it, I will let you have it for much less than the ordinary Ranges are sold for. To try it is to like it. You will see it at the Fall Fairs. You ought to hear what some of my customers say about this range. Mr. William Unger, Palace Road, Napanee, says he would not take $100.00 for his, if he could not get another. Also the following: Mrs.

Merritt, Mr. Davern, all of Adolphustown; James McKittrick, Selby, Ont. Mr. Sharp, Morven, says it took as much wood to run his stove two days as it takes to run mine SEVEN DAYS. Now, friends, do not forget the fact that I am still selling the very best up-to-date sewing machines in the market, with a good guarantee, 20

THE PLUSH COAT.

Sarah Jane Was Told the True Reason She Couldn't Get It.

Fifteen years ago the community of Wigglesquack Centre was startled by the report that Eben Crabshaw was going to buy his wife a plush coat. Eben didn't deny the rumor, and Sarah Jane, his wife, contented herself with replying to all queries that where there was so much smoke she guessed there must be some fire. Jared Minthorn, who kept the general store, was much exercised, and wanted to take the order, but Eben said he guessed he'd select it from the catalogue of the mail order house, which caused considerable hard feeling between Eben and Jared.

As the years went by and Sarah Jane didn't get her plush coat, the storekeeper began to get skeptical. After ten years had elapsed he became facetious, and the thirteenth year he began to taunt her. "I hain't seen that there plush coat yit, Sar' Jane," he said.

Sarah Jane went home and told Eben, and Eben was so wrought up that he determined to trade with Harvey Stockpole over at Burnt Meadows, although Burnt Meadows was three miles farther away.

But the legend of the plush coat had penetrated even to Burnt Meadows, and after a couple of years had elapsed Harvey Stockpole said to Sarah Jane one day, "How about that there plush coat Eben's a-goin' to get you?"

But this time Sarah Jane was joined. Eben had tutored her. Drawing

South Sea Swells.

Readers of old narratives of exploration in the south seas will recall the frequent references to the heavy swells of the ocean, which impressed the navigators with the idea of their remoteness from land. Dr. Vaughan Cornish explains the great size of the sea waves in high southern latitudes by the fact that south of the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn there is neither windward nor leeward shore and the prevailing wind in all longitudes is westerly. Thus when a west wind springs up it finds a long westerly swell, the effect of a previous wind, still running. The newborn wind increases the steepness of this swell and so forms majestic storm waves, which sometimes attain a length of 1,200 feet from crest to crest. The average height attained by sea waves in feet is about half the velocity of the wind in miles per hour.

But the legend of the plush coat had penetrated even to Burnt Meadows, and after a couple of years had elapsed Harvey Stackpole said to Sarah Jane one day, "How about that plush coat Eben's again to get you?"

But this time Sarah Jane was primed. Eben had tutored her. Drawing herself up proudly, she replied:

"Mr. Stackpole, if you knowed as much about furs as you do about axing," said an' sugar you'd know that the United States Government has been compelled to protect the species from foreign invasion, that the animal is rapidly becomin' extinct and that there ain't no more plushes bein' killed."

She Consulted a Clock.

Girls are not noted for being strong on figures, and one of them was relating recently the mental maze into which she was introduced as the result of asking a perfectly innocent question. She was going downtown on the car one afternoon and queried the conductor as to the time. He withdrew his alarm clock of a watch from a capacious pocket, observed the dial with the care used by a mariner in taking an observation with the sextant and then remarked in a portentous tone, "It lacks three seconds of being 2:48." The poor girl was so overwhelmed with the mass of material for a short exercise in oral arithmetic that she waited until she got downtown before trying to find out really what time it was, and then she consulted a big clock, where she had plenty of time to see just where each hand was.

Sorry She Screamed.

The young man kissed her, and she screamed.

"What's the trouble, Kitty?" demanded a stern voice from upstairs.

"I just saw a mouse," she fibbed.

Presently the young man claimed another kiss, and the scream was repeated. Again came the stern voice:

"What is it this time?"

"I just saw another mouse."

Then the old man came down with the house cat, a mouse trap and a can and sat in a corner to watch developments.

Paid His Debt.

When Joe Chamberlain entered the House of Commons he was anxious to try his oratorical powers. A certain leading politician who was piloting a bill through the House was approached by one of Mr. Chamberlain's friends, who said:

"Chamberlain would like to speak on the bill. Can you give him a chance?"

"Well, you know, I think it would not do. He's a new member, and nobody knows what the dickens he might say."

Time went on. Chamberlain gained ground—became a power in Parliament. The leading politician, on the contrary, had made a series of blunders which had imperiled his position. An election was imminent. Forgetting his previous record, he thought that if he could get Mr. Chamberlain to speak for him he would strengthen his position. He therefore applied to the right honorable gentleman. The latter calmly surveyed him through his eyeglass and said:

"Well, you know, I think it would not do. I am a new member, and nobody knows what the dickens I might say."

WILTON.

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 8th, a pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of James Davey, when his daughter, Leita Merle, was united in marriage to John Albert Henderson, eldest son of O. B. Henderson, Murvale, Rev. Mr. Boyce performed the ceremony. At eight o'clock the groom took his plate under an arch of evergreens, between drawing-room and hall, where he was joined by the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and hence to their place under a floral bell suspended from a wreath of evergreens and white satin ribbon. The bride looked charming in an Empire gown of Brussels net over cream taffeta, trimmed with Brussels lace and ties of fringed duchess satin, and carried a bouquet of white rose buds and maiden hair ferns. She was unattended save for her cousin, little Gladys Wallace, dressed in white, who carried the ring embedded in flowers on a silver tray. Miss Myrtle Gallagher, Harrowsmith, cousin of the bride, played Mendelssohn's wedding march. After the ceremony, the guests, who numbered about seventy, repaired to the dining-rooms, which were beautifully decorated in white and green, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The going away suit of the bride was broadcloth and taupe hat with plumes. The happy young couple left amid showers of confetti, for Toronto, Niagara, and Buffalo. The bride was the recipient of many costly and beautiful presents, among them being a combination buffet and china closet from her father, and a leather rocker from her cousin. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold-lined, silver tea set, to the ring girl a gold bracelet and to the organist a pearl pin.
